Huge Cache of Heroin Confiscated by Police

Suspect Shot In Gun Battle; Wife Arrested

A 23-year-old Lawndale man was shot six times early Tuesday evening during a gun battle with Torrance police which resulted in the seizure of a large cache of heroin.

Raymond Charles Spafford, of 15601 Crenshaw Blvd., Apt. 234, was rushed to Harbor General Hospital following the gun battle. His wife, Sherron Yvonne Spafford, 23, of the same address, was booked at the Torrance City Jail on a charge of possession of heroin for sale.

Spafford will be booked on the same charge and on charges of assault with intent to commit murder, it was reported.

suspects were not at home, they entered the apartment to wait.

Spafford and his wife returned at 6:30 p.m., reportedly from a store where they had bought dextrose and balloons for preparation of the heroin for sale. Mrs. Spafford apparently remained in the parking

Street Funds Voted

TORRANCE officers and state narcotics agents seized uncut heroin believed to be worth at least $80,000 in the apartment. One estimate put the "street value" of the haul at as much as $1 million.

Police Chief Walter R. Koenig revealed the arrests in a dramatic announcement before the Torrance City Council last night.

Later, a press conference at the police station, Chief Koenig said he had "never seen so much raw heroin in 30 years."

During the press conference, officers gave these details of the incident:
OFFICER Pete Snodgrass of the Torrance Police Department and Senior Narcotics Agent Edmund Reyes of the State Narcotics Bureau went to the Spafford apartment early Tuesday evening after having made arrangements to purchase heroin from the suspects.

City councilmen last night voted to appropriate gas tax funds for the improvement of two area streets.

Councilmen voted $10,000 for the improvement of Carson Street from Torrance High School to Western Avenue and another $5,000 for improvement of 182nd Street from Prairie Avenue to Doty Avenue.

The Carson Street improvements are currently under design. Another $8,000 has already been appropriated from the gas tax fund, and more money will be required to cover partial construction costs. County support will also be requested on completion of the design.

Property owners on the south side of 182nd Street, east of Prairie Avenue, have volunteered to dedicate right-of-way needed to widen the street. Widening would eliminate a bottleneck at this point and provide a parkway on the south side of the street for pedestrian traffic.

The city hopes to complete the work prior to, or immediately after, school opens in September. School boundary adjustments in the area will increase the pedestrian use at this location significantly.

City Pays $15,000 for Nollac Case

It cost the city of Torrance $15,808.75 in legal fees to prosecute Walter M. Nollac, former city engineer, who was recently dismissed on charges of inefficiency and failure to perform duties.

City councilmen last night voted to appropriate an additional $3,508.75 to settle the bill with prosecuting attorney Walter N. Anderson, who represented the city. Earlier, the council had appropriated $12,300 for legal fees.

The total bill of $15,808.75 covers both the first and second hearings against Nollac.

Anderson was paid at the rate of $35 an hour for preparation time and $40 per hour for trial time since Feb. 1. Maximum rate per day was $240.

The legal fees were appropriated from the general fund unappropriated surplus.

Retirement Bill Clears Hurdle in Legislature

Torrance Police Chief Walter Koenig has moved one step closer to solving his retirement problems.

The State Assembly has passed AB 1717, in an amended form, which would permit the governing body of a city to exempt a chief of police from mandatory retirement at age 60, keeping him on until age 65 if it desires. The vote was 47-1.

The chief's problem stems from the fact that the city council recently adopted the California highway patrol retirement for city safety personnel. The plan would require Koenig and others to retire at age 60, even though the chief came to Torrance with the agreement that he would be retained until he was 65.

mandatory retirement age was not applicable to local safety members who entered a city's employ above the normal age of recruitment. The amended plan requires the local governing body to give its consent to the extended service.

In some quarters, it is believed that Torrance city charter provisions prohibiting the city council from delving into city personnel affairs would prevent the council from taking action to retain Chief Koenig.

BUT CITY Attorney Stanley Remelmeyer said Tuesday he didn't think such council action would amount to a violation of the city charter. Remelmeyer said he couldn't imagine any court ruling against city council action to retain Chief Koenig.

Koenig said Tuesday he was encouraged by the "tremendous show of public support" for him. He said that the state legislature had received more than 300 letters from local residents urging passage of AB 1717.

"I don't even know who most of these supporters are," Koenig said, "but I'm grateful to them."

AB 1717 has now gone to a state senate committee. If the bill passes the senate, then Chief Koenig will be in the clear if he can convince the city council to pass a resolution retaining him.

Before AB 1717 was amended, it stipulated that the

$732,000 Grant Slated for Park

Announcement of a $732,000 federal grant to help the city develop a 52-acre regional park was made Monday afternoon in Washington, D.C.

Congressman Glenn M. Anderson (D-17th District) announced the grant, which was made by the Department of Housing and Urban Affairs under national open-space legislation.

Actual amount of the grant is $732,971, Anderson noted.

THE GRANT will be used to help acquire about 24 acres of land in the vicinity of 190th Street and Hawthorne Boulevard. The land, together with 17 acres made available to the city by the Columbia Broadcasting System and 10 acres from Southern California Edison Co., will then be developed as a regional park.

City councilmen previously named the park Columbia Park in recognition of the CBS action making available the 17-acre area.

The city will have to come up with some $400,000 in order to acquire the land. Under present programs, about half the acquisition costs will be paid through federal grants, while another 25 per cent will be paid through state grants.
