Mrs. Nettie Steinhilber spent the week end with her daughters in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Leslie Lawrence and her daughter and mother, Mrs. Boose, have moved to Redondo Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Dean left yesterday for Los Angeles to make their home for a year. Mr. Dean who is a mail carrier in the city, hopes to be transferred to the local service within that time, which will enable them to again take up their residence here. The Deans own their own home here and have resided here for two years.

Friday afternoon a social gathering of the Episcopal church was held at the residence of Mrs. A. W. Handel, 1012 Arlington avenue. Quite a number of ladies were present and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served. It is the intention of the guild to hold these social gatherings once a month, so that they may all become better acquainted with each other.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. King, Mr. and Mrs. James L. King and Harold King left Saturday for an automobile trip to San Diego. They expect to visit Tia Jauna and other points of interest, arriving home on Wednesday.

A crowd of seven young people driving from Long Beach to Redondo Beach met with an accident late Saturday night west of Torrance on the turn near the Standard Oil Well. The driver, who was speeding and probably unfamiliar with the turns, struck a hole in the road, the machine turning over two or three times. Full details could not be learned, but it is known that two were badly hurt. One young girl had her jaw bone broken and one of the young men suffered a broken thigh bone. Dr. Lancaster hurried to the scene of the accident and rendered first aid.

Thomas Evans of the San Pedro News was a Torrance visitor Wednesday. This was Mr. Evans' first visit to Torrance, and he was highly pleased with the city, but very much surprised to find so few homes here for the number of men employed in the different factories. Mr. Evans' idea is that "a town good enough to work in is good enough to live in."

PACIFIC COAST ELECTRICAL ASSOCIATION

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—President A. B. West of the Pacific Coast Electrical Association, opened the sixth annual convention of the organization at the Ambassador Hotel Wednesday morning in an address to the members. Figures were cited from the U. S. Census and other official reports showing that electric power has a per capita consumption of 1085 kilowatt hours in California, against 372 for the United States, and that rates are lower here than anywhere else.

"The super-power program of the Atlantic States has already been realized here," said Mr. West, "in an interconnected system extending from Eugene, Oregon, to the Mexican border, thus forming in this territory the largest concentrated block of electric power ever made available for public use. In 1920 eighty-three per cent of the houses of the state were wired as against thirty-five per cent for the United States, and electrical power is used to irrigate over 1,470,000 acres, a total of over one-third of California's irrigated lands.

"So consistently has California led the world in electrical development," said Mr. West, in conclusion, "that the engineers and experts of the world come here to study these great accomplishments."

The convention brings together 500 delegates from Arizona, Nevada and California, representative of every phase of the industry. At the industrial conference and banquet there will be addresses by Howard F. Beebe, president of the Investment Banker Association of America; Chester Rowell of the State Railroad Commission, Capt. John D. Fredericks of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, and others. A message from Secretary of Commerce, Herbert Hoover, will be received by direct wire during the banquet today. Technical and commercial sessions dealing with the problems of the industry will be held during the three successive days which the convention continues.

ICED COFFEE DELICIOUS

Hot coffee has long been the favorite American drink, but iced coffee has never received the appreciation it deserves. We are the greatest consumers of iced beverages in the world. We drink oceans of iced tea, but iced coffee is only beginning to come into its own.

Probably the best way to make iced coffee is to pour the brew while it is piping hot over cracked ice. For this method it is necessary to brew coffee stronger than usual to make up for the dilution that results from the melting of the ice. Make a pot very strong, have a glass filled with crushed or cracked ice, pour in the coffee, wait until most of the ice melts, and, if it is not sufficiently chilled, add more ice. Then put in sugar and cream to suit the taste.

This combination makes a drink that is not only cooling but refreshing and sustaining. The trouble with the average summer drink is that it is too sweet and cloying. It contains no real stimulation. Coffee has just enough stimulating effect to revive the energies which are likely to be at a low ebb toward the close of a steaming summer day.

Iced coffee is a superlative drink by itself, but coffee also makes a delicious flavoring which may be added to various other iced summer drinks. For these mixtures a concentrated coffee syrup serves perfectly well and is more convenient. For purposes of economy many housekeepers utilize in this way coffee left over from meals. When this is done, however, the left-over coffee should be kept in a covered glass or china dish, and it should not be allowed to stand too long.
