homa, New York and Texas, which underwent overhaul before the fleet sailed for northern waters last spring, every dreadnaught has this summer been brushed up from truck to double bottoms. Construction gangs, ordinance experts and machinists have attended every item of the ships' equipment from the bake ovens to broadside director switchboards and injector valves. All ships have been supplied with fresh ammunition supplies, including everything from the three-inch anti-aircraft pieces to the fourteen-inch main batteries.

Several of the familiar craft of the force will be missing from the lineup when it rounds Breaker Light at the home base. The famous old battleship Connecticut, now flagship of the base force, will on September 5 be relieved by the new steamer Procyon, now due from the East Coast. The collier Nanshan, for three years target vessel of the fleet, has gone out of commission this summer and her place is to be taken by the former Shipping Board freighter Antares. The submarine tender Camden, is undergoing a complete overhaul and reconditioning at Mare Island. When she returns to Los Angeles in December she will have dropped the stolid lines of a German freighter for those of the typical Navy tender.

The Fleet has had its recreation in the North, navy officials point out, and immediately after the dreadnaughts return to the base a comprehensive program of divisional maneuvers and squadron practices will be put underway. The first big activity will be spectacular aero-torpedo defense exercises, to be staged in September by the entire dreadnaught force and two squadrons of scout and torpedo planes.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS-WOODMEN

The Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen have arranged their booth together, the former to have charge of the booth in the day time and the Woodmen will be there in the evenings. They serve lunches—home-made pies, hamburger and hot dogs, sandwiches and coffee.

MAYBE WE'RE LUCKY.

We don't know whether it's a case of Providence smiling on this part of the world, or whether it's a display of more careful judgment than residents of some other sections show, but at any rate the people of this community can be thankful that so far we have gone through what doctors call "the danger period" of the year without any more than the usual amount of sickness, and without serious epidemics.

But it is well to remember we are not entirely out of the danger zone, and that typhoid and the many forms of summer illness so common in America, are still apt to appear in this community. Careful watch should be taken to see that drinking water is not polluted. Because it hasn't been in the past is no sign that it may not be at any moment. Additional care should be taken in eating and then working in the hot sun; and still more attention should be paid to what we put into our stomachs in the way of soft drinks and ices. This applies to both young and old.

From numerous sections come reports of serious typhoid epidemics, and in most instances they are traced directly to water polluted by improper drainage systems. They are too expensive, and we are not thickly populated enough in this section to maintain them. But any community can, by using a reasonable amount of care, keep summer diseases down to a minimum and not invite an epidemic by carelessly overlooking the need of judgment in the way we live our daily lives. It is far better to be a little careful now than to be sorry for many years to come.

Undersea Base to Remain at L. A. Harbor

Reports that the Navy Department will not cause the removal of the submarine base from Los Angeles Harbor to San Diego, have been confirmed by the receipt of telegrams from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt to Congressman Lineberger.

Major Lineberger was informed that the removal orders issued to Capt. W. R. Miller at the base several weeks ago have been officially rescinded and that the base will remain at its present location.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt's telegram was as follows: "Department canceled order directing commanding officer of the submarine base to submit plans for removal base from Los Angeles to San Diego. Base will remain at Los Angeles."

Fleet Return Scheduled for September 20

The arrival of ten dreadnaughts of the Pacific Fleet are scheduled on September 20 ETPB. INetolshrdl to be at anchor in Los Angeles Harbor on September 20, and the fleet will stand out with the cleanest cut appearance of fighting efficiency since it came to the Pacific three years ago. Several new vessels will be in the flotilla and every unit of the force will be fresh from complete overhaul.

With the exception of the Okla-
