

Black Walnut Kisses

Readers of the Herald will wish they belonged to the Bartlett family before they have finished this story, for it tells of two families of that name comprising eight members that absolutely control the secret of the manufacture and the output amounting to hundreds of thousands of pounds annually of one of the most delicious confections manufactured.

The member of the family residing here is T. B. Bartlett, proprietor of the Bartlett Sweet Shop, who at great expense in both time and money, brought to the Torrance fair the intricate machinery and valuable ingredients with which to make the famous "Tom's Black Walnut Kisses" that are being sold literally by the ton in the industrial tent.

The formula, that was discovered by a relative of the Torrance merchant, has remained a secret in his family for many years, so jealously guarded that its owners have never had the process patented. In the eastern states where it is a "staple" among candies, the walnuts are cracked by machinery, but here Mr. Bartlett and his assistants are compelled to crack the shells by hand and extract the necessary walnut oil in a similar manner and in other ways go to great inconvenience to produce just the right flavor. When the fair closes tomorrow night Mr. Bartlett, accompanied by his seven assistants, will move the candy-making plant to Exposition Park, Los Angeles, where he will tickle the palates of visitors to the great Pageant of Progress, that is to be staged in the big city for fifteen days.

Torrance Chamber Shows Pictures of Local Factories

Perhaps no display in the Chamber of Commerce tent at the fair has attracted more universal attention, especially in the evening than has the comprehensive exhibit of the Torrance chamber, that includes many of the articles manufactured hereabouts, including lumber, lath and shingles from the Consolidated Lumber company and an immense ingot of iron from the Llewellyn Iron Works on which is prominently displayed the information that this company is prepared to cast ingots weighing from 1000 to 80,000 pounds.

The center of attraction at the booth, however, is the motion picture projected on a cunningly arranged screen at the end of a long, enclosed tube. These pictures recently made by an expert moving picture operator show the interior and exterior of the various industries of Torrance as well as the interesting process of manufacture in the Union Tool company, Pacific Electric shops, Llewellyn Iron Works, Glass Works, Button factory, and other manufacturing plants. Three prints of this excellent film that gives to the visitor an optical demonstration of the various industries of Torrance, were made and one is being shown daily in the lecture room of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; one in the ferry building in San Francisco and the third in the Torrance Fair tent.

Already hundreds of inquiries have resulted and the advertising value of the picture is satisfying to the directors of the local chamber of commerce.

Sash and Door Manufacturers Fine Display

Located at the extreme north end of the chambers of commerce tent is the creditable display of the Harbor City chamber of commerce, where is shown to good advantage the various products of the Harbor Sash and Door factory, one of the leading industries of that thriving community. With a precision found usually only in larger establishments the doors, window frames, sash and built-in work of this establishment has received during the week many complimentary criticisms and has added materially to its already excellent reputation as a maker of building material that cannot be excelled in the state. Among the Harbor City's merchants' display is that of the King Furniture store that includes bed, tables, chairs and range.

No Cause for Anxiety.

Father had been cleaning the bedroom windows outside, when little Muriel came in from the garden, and said, "Mother, did you hear the ladder fall down just now?"

"No," replied the mother.

"Well," said the child, "it fell down and broke three flower-pots. I told daddy you'd be cross."

"Oh, dear," said mother; "I hope your daddy hasn't hurt himself!"

"I don't think he has yet," said little Muriel; "he's still hanging on to the window-sill."—Exchange.

DON'T FORGET!

Judge Harry H. Atwood will speak at Legion Hall, Wednesday, Aug. 23, at 8 o'clock p. m. Be there and bring your friends—it's free.

Judge Atwood will also address the men employes at the Llewellyn Iron Works from 11:30 to 12; the men of the Union Tool Company from 12 to 12:40; and the Pacific Electric from 1 to 1:30.

Take Anything.

Housewife—"I'll not give you anything. Do you know who I am?"

Tramp—"No, mum."

Housewife—"Well, I'm a policeman's wife, and if my husband were here he would take you, and quickly, too."

Tramp—"I believe yer, mum. Your husband 'ud take anybody."—The Bulletin (Sydney).

Settled Down.

It was a well-known writer of verse to whom a lady said: "I have just seen your wife for the first time since your marriage; but I had supposed she was a taller woman. She seems shorter than when I saw her last."

"Certainly," said the writer solemnly. "She has married and settled down."

Restive.

First Lady—(in village shop, speaking to another patron)—"Would you mind if I made my small purchase first? We have a horse outside and he won't keep quiet."

Second Lady—"Certainly; but you won't be very long, will you? I have a husband outside and he's rather restive, too."—Punch.
