Opportunity Is Now Knocking

Not since the days of gold has California been the center of the world's interest and attention as today. With the various national advertising campaign setting forth the varied attractions and opportunities of California, countless thousands are being impressed with the fact that this is the time to make the momentous decision.

From all sections of the state civic and commercial organizations report a greatly increased volume of inquiry from prospective settlers, investors and industries. The automobile associations and the railroads are preparing to handle the greatest volume of tourist travel in the history of the state. Every indication points to the fact that California is on the eve of the greatest era of development that the Golden State has yet experienced.

How to capitalize this broad interest is the live issue and problem of the various communities of the state. Advertising and publicity can bring the customer to the door but it takes organization and salesmanship to actually sell the commodity.

Here as elsewhere this community will find that one of the most effective mediums for capitalizing this increased opportunity for expansion and development will be through a strongly organized Chamber of Commerce. Out of the great assortment of experiments conducted by American communities over a period of years, the fundamental principle embraced in the Chamber of Commerce today stands recognized as the most efficient instrument for civic accomplishment.

But the elements of a successful Chamber of Commerce embrace more than an organization with its various officers. It includes and, in fact, depends upon the active participation of a representative membership. All groups and individuals profit directly or indirectly from the work of the organization. The degree of profit both to the individual and the community at large is in proportion to the time given by the citizens to the civic work of the Chamber of Commerce.

Now is the time to support our Chamber of Commerce, both with memberships and services, so that this community may fully realize the opportunities for progress that are daily passing this way.

MICHIGANDERS NOTICE

The Michigan Association of Southern California which has been putting on your mammoth picnic reunions for the past twenty years now announces the annual picnic for all day, Saturday, (not Sunday) March 17. We will celebrate St. Patrick's Day and wear green badges for old time's sake. The live wire president, Dr. M. R. Parmelee, (who followed Samuel Young and O. W. Blain) will preside and have charge of the program. All the usual picnic features will be carried out, county registers, hot coffee, badges, program. Picknickers will bring their basket dinners. Every Wolverine is urged to join in the jollity.

Governor Saving State From Educational and Financial Bankruptcy, Says Authority

Head of Carnegie Foundation For Advancement of Teaching, Says Salvation of Schools Will Be in Improving Their Worth

Governor Richardson, by carrying out his pre-election promises to cut expenses, is not only saving the state from financial bankruptcy, but he is saving it from educational bankruptcy or worse, according to Dr. Harry Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, and for years a leader in national and international educational movements.

Dr. Pritchett said that educational institutions throughout the United States, fed by seemingly unlimited funds, are drifting to a greater disaster in superficiality, and he said plainly that Governor Richardson's policy will make educational institutions prove their worth and save them for real solid service to the people.

"The expenses of government, both in nation and in the state," said Dr. Pritchett, "are increasing beyond the ability of the public to support. Such extravagance in government is reflected in similar extravagance of the individual. The government of California has become one of the most expensive on earth, and Governor Richardson, in making this the central issue of his campaign, did a great public service, and he has made good his pre-election statements by practical action in boldly cutting down the present high cost of government, and in stopping the policy of indefinite increase in cost.

"He deserves the support of all thoughtful citizens in this action, and he deserves their support for another reason. He squarely attacked the fallacy that these mounting costs of government could be in some mysterious way saddled upon the corporations. No greater deceit was ever practiced on a people than the effort to foist this fallacy upon them as a public policy. In the end these costs of government are paid by the individual citizens of all classes. Every man of wealth and every wage earner pays, and the unnecessary cost of government bears its heaviest force upon the wage earners. Any man who undertakes to make the wage earners of a state believe that the expenses of government, of public improvements, of luxuries as well as the necessities of life can be paid for in any other way than at the cost of the great body of people who do the work of the country is either a man incapable of reasoning or else he is willing to gain a temporary political advantage at the cost of infinite harm later.

"Great as is our obligation to Governor Richardson for his honest and sincere action in cutting down the growing cost of the state government, we are the more indebted to him for boldly attacking the economic fallacy that the people of California could spend these stupendous sums without having the expense come home to every man who earns a day's wages or receives an income from capital.

"There are a great many people who will agree with Governor Richardson in theory who will hesitate to give him their support in the actual performance of his great task. Governor Richardson cannot cut down the expenses of government without cutting off many sources of waste that give salaries to people who would find it hard to earn salaries in the ordinary business of life. It is very difficult to make gentlemen in this situation believe in the need of those economies that cut off their salaries."

Torrance Business Men Enjoy Weekly Banquet

If "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach" the heart of every business man in Torrance was touched Thursday night when A. W. Meinzer, proprietor of the El Prado cafe, gave the members of the Torrance Business Men's Association one of the most enjoyable banquets ever served by this well known chef.

Following the serving of delicious oyster soup and salad, a serving of tender young turkey with cranberry sauce was laid before the guests, to be followed later by tenderloin steak with new green peas, brick ice cream and cake and later still, coffee and cigars.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The members decided that some time in the near future the organization would give a dance in the Legion hall and the entertainment committee will report on the matter at a special meeting to be held tonight when the license matter will be disposed of by a committee appointed for that purpose.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Collins of Arlington have moved to Pomona, where Mr. Collins has accepted a position.

Mrs. L. A. Tupper of Los Angeles, formerly employed at the City Cash Market, was calling on Torrance friends Friday.

A. W. Hemsath has moved from 2003 Andreo avenue to his new home on Portola avenue.

A. L. Bond has sold his barber shop in Lomita and is back in Torrance working at Murray's Postoffice Barber Shop.

Mrs. George Watson and Mrs. Fred Lessing were luncheon guests Tuesday of Mrs. Alyah Nix at Long Beach.

Budget Law Puts Greased Legislation On Toboggan

Two years ago certain commercial interests allied with California agriculture boasted that they had secured the passage of 100 per cent of all their bills presented to the Legislature.

Today, anyone with a knowledge of state affairs must come to understand that Governor Richardson's "Budget" is the only logical solution for "pernicious pyramiding!"

Through the apparent ease, in the past, with which desired legislation commanding vast sums of public money, has been affected, it must be patent to all that unless some definite steps are taken to define with some degree of exactitude the actual functions of certain state departments, there would be "no limit" to their activities, with a corresponding vast increase "every two years" in the cost of maintenance.

This is fully exemplified by the fact that, anticipating Stephens' re-election, a certain state department prepared a budget for 1923 totaling over two and a half millions of dollars—twice that of 1921! And unless some moderating influence fortunately had been brought to bear, it is reasonable to presume that the additions, every two years, of new or elaborated activities would have called for sums for maintenance that shortly would have reached colossal and unbearable proportions.

Governor Richardson is right. There is no room for argument. The howl set up by the Governor's opponents simply represents propaganda, induced by fear that the administration will go a step further and purge the state departments of needless graft. Let us support the administration. Let us wait with patience and California will learn, ere four years have elapsed, what a tremendous tax they paid to the Frankenstein monster—Governmental Extravagance!

London To Pay $500,000 Daily

WASHINGTON, March 8.—One-half million dollars a day for 62 years!

This is the stupendous sum which the British empire has obligated itself to pay in the agreement reached here with the American government for a settlement of the $4,600,000,000 war debt to the United States.

Not alone is the settlement for payment of this gigantic indebtedness probably the greatest financial transaction of its kind in history, but the underlying factors involved in this pact of billions make it one of the most stirring historical events of economic and political drama produced in the World War. One of the leading British figures in the conduct of the negotiations which developed this epochal agreement has given a vivid insight into the picture of the settlement of Britain's huge war debt.

Reduced to its vitals, the debt agreement means that Britain must pay $500,000 a day for the next 62 years—this, of course, including the interest and the other complicated services of the loan. Sundays are not included. Had the war debt been collected under the original act of Congress with the provisions for 4 1/2 per cent interest and the payment of the loan in 25 years, it would have necessitated Great Britain paying approximately $1,000,000 a day—a sum which it is felt in this quarter neither Britain could afford to pay nor the United States to collect.
