

Bank of Italy Is 20 Years Old Today

James A. Baicigalupi and A. P. Giannini

James A. Baicigalupi today became president of the Bank of Italy upon the occasion of its twentieth anniversary...

"As chairman of the executive committee," continued Mr. Giannini, "I am in no way severing my relationship with the Bank of Italy, but rather freeing myself of many details so that I will have time for the steadily increasing volume of responsibilities..."

knowledge of its history, policies and personnel. L. Scatena, chairman of the board of directors, will remain in that office. L. M. Giannini, assistant to the president, will be vice-chairman of the board of directors of the Bank of Italy as well as president of the Stockholders Auxiliary Corporation...

A READY EXCUSE

Mrs. Jones had just engaged a new cook and she had only one misgiving about the matter. Bridget was not at all bad looking, and she feared the young men would be hanging around.

"Now, remember," Mrs. Jones said to her the first morning after breakfast, "no followers are allowed in the kitchen. My last cook had to leave for not keeping to that rule."

A few days later the mistress went to the culinary department on a tour of inspection. She opened the door of a large cupboard and, to her great surprise, found a policeman standing there. She turned an accusing eye on Bridget.

Two Presidential Candidates Characterized By Signatures

WIFE SAVERS BY MRS. MARY MORTON

Peach Cake.—Make a layer cake of two layers, using one cup sugar, one-fourth cup shortening, three eggs, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup boiling water, let cool and while cooling place in your cream whipper the white of one egg, one cup of sliced fresh peaches, and one cup of granulated sugar. Whip until stiff and then place between the layers of the cake and pile on top.

Thousand Island Dressing.—One cup mayonnaise, one-fourth cup chicken, one-fourth cup sweet spiced relish, one pimento cut up fine, one small green pepper.

To remove markings of indelible ink, first touch each stain with tincture of iodine and, after letting stand a few minutes, wet each one with household ammonia; then wash the spot in a solution of ammonia and water. The stain will disappear. The same result may be obtained by soaking the stain in a strong solution of salt water and then washing with ammonia water—not using soap. In this case the silver nitrate of the indelible ink is changed by the salt to silver chloride and the silver chloride is dissolved and removed by the ammonia water.

Spinach with Bacon.—Cook the spinach in just the water that adheres to the leaves after it is thoroughly washed. When tender remove from pan and drain in colander. Into the sauce pan put a few slices of bacon that have been chopped finely. When crisp, stir in the drained spinach and heat thoroughly. Season with salt and pepper and serve with or without a hard-boiled egg garnish.

FAMILY MARKETING

A good rule to follow, if you do not carry it to extremes in your enthusiasm, is to do your own delivering as much as possible. Most housewives keep themselves shut up too much in the house. If one would make it a practice to fare forth, basket on arm, on a marketing trip, she would find the outside air and exercise worth more than the time and strength consumed in the trip, and better buying would be accomplished. Then, too, if you go to market or store and select a good chicken, steak, etc., and bring it home with you, you are sure of it and will not have the annoyance of having it slipped by mistake, in the delivery man's rush, into someone else's order. One can usually find a reliable dealer where one can do part of one's buying within a reasonable walking distance of home. I would caution you, however, don't try to carry home loads that are too heavy for you, or you will get harm instead of good from your walk to market.

Broiled Meat Patty.—Scrape two or three ounces of round steak with a knife. This leaves the fibers of the meat and gives you the clean meat pulp. Season slightly with salt and form in a small flat cake. Broil four minutes, turning often. The meat should be rare, so the thickness of your patty will determine the length of time you broil it.

CHILDREN'S SHOES

All mothers and fathers know to their sorrow how quickly and completely children's shoes wear out. I read recently how one mother solved the difficulty, and you may be interested in her solution. She says that she cuts extra soles from old inner tubes and glues them to the bottom of the shoes. By sandpapering the bottoms lightly and using rubber cement little trouble will be had in making these extra soles stick as closely as though they were a part of the original sole. When they wear through the pieces can be pulled off and a new pair glued in place, thus saving the original soles indefinitely. If one did not find it practical to put these extra soles on all the children's shoes, it would certainly help on the play shoes in these days of "pumping" wagons and scooters.

Chocolate Bread Pudding.—One and one-half cups stale bread crumbs without crust, two cups hot milk, one square chocolate, one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one egg. Combine milk and bread crumbs and let stand half an hour. Melt chocolate over hot water. Add to bread and milk with butter, sugar, salt and vanilla. Beat egg well and stir into mixture. Turn into a

For the table where glass plays an important part in the service there are artistic colored glass salt and pepper cellars. These shakers are a bit different in shape from the popular ones of the past season, coming into a globe shape at the top. They fill from the bottom. Those in purple or amethyst and red are particularly attractive.
