AFFAIRS of the HEART

By Mrs. Thompson

FORGIVE OR FORGET

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been a widow for a number of years and am keeping boarders and roomers to earn my way in the world. There is a man staying in my home who has been with us for several years and whom I have loved very dearly. He has told me numberless times that he loved me also. He has been very good to me and has been an ideal friend in every way until recently when he went out with degraded women from the shop where he works. He even brought their disgrace and filth into our home. Since I found this out I am so disgusted with him I am heart sick. I can't sit at the table to eat where he is or even stay in the house when I he is there. But what can I do? I can't make him leave, for we are business partners in the property where we live and also in other property and money. Should I break up the home to dissolve the partnership? Or what should I do? He has begged me to forgive him and not put him out. He says he will never again cause me such trouble. I have tried to forgive and forget but I am afraid I never can. I can never trust him again as before and I don't feel I want to be a business partner with him.

TROUBLED.
It is quite probable that you could put out your boarder if he is bringing disgrace to your home. Such a matter should be handled through an attorney and I would advise you to get legal advice if you really want to dissolve the partnership. If you are merely upset because of what you have discovered but in spite of it would like to give the man another chance, drop the matter entirely. Sit at the table as you did formerly and to all appearances forgive and forget. You will keep yourself and everyone else miserable if you continue to show resentment and nothing will be gained by such an attitude. Clear up the matter at once either by getting rid of the man or dropping the unpleasant thing.

BROWN EYES: There are many girls just like your friend, wanting to meet all the young men that the other girls are going with, but refusing to introduce the young-men they know. Since you have so many good times with the girl, however, I would advise you to overlook her failing and keep her as your friend for the qualities you like in her. In the future follow her example and do not introduce your boy friends to her. Be gentle, thoughtful and tolerant of your schoolmates if you want to be popular and give up all thought of becoming popular with every one, because popularity is bound to make enemies.

ANXIOUS: The only thing for you to do is to be as happy as possible, trying to keep the sailor out of your mind. Go with other young men in his absence, because you and he are not betrothed and he would hardly appreciate your loyalty if you turned down invitations from other young men. When he returns, watch for an opportunity to speak to him and then explain that you feel very badly because your parents were so unkind and made it impossible for him to come to your home. If he still cares for you he will find another way to see you.

MODERN
Mary Ann gave notice she was going to be married. Her mistress, slightly perturbed, said: "Of course I don't want to put any obstacle in the way of your getting married, but I wish it were possible for you to postpone it until I can get another maid."
"Well, mum," Mary Anne replied, "I hardly think I know 'im well enough to ask 'im to put it off!"

and every possible reward for straight and accurate shots. After all the secret of golfing success is accuracy.
Add to the admirable layout of the holes, each one of which will delight any golfer, the natural beauty of the surroundings—trees, hills, sky and sea—and you have a golf links that is destined to take its rank among the foremost courses of the world.

WALTER CAMP, dean of football critics, speaking in Los Angeles

Wednesday, exhorted fathers to be interested in athletics for the sake of their sons.
"If a boy's father," he said, "doesn't know who Red Grange and Babe Ruth are, and if he looks like an office building, the boy will give him up as hopeless and begin to lionize someone else."
That is good advice to fathers.
Boys are hero-worshippers. They bow down to manly prowess. Fathers who do not understand this and who do not go back to boyhood with their sons, find, to their disappointment, that a breach is widening hopelessly between themselves and their sons.
There is no companionship quite as elevated as that between a father and a son who admire, respect and love each other and who are actually good chums.

LOST

The harassed-looking man was rushing hither and thither round the store in a state of wild excitement. He went up to the top floor and down to the basement. Finally he had arrived on the ground floor, looking hot and flushed, when he was approached by a polite floorwalker.

"Are you looking for something in men's clothing?" inquired that individual politely.
"No, no," roared the excited one; "not men's clothing—women's clothing! I've lost my wife!"

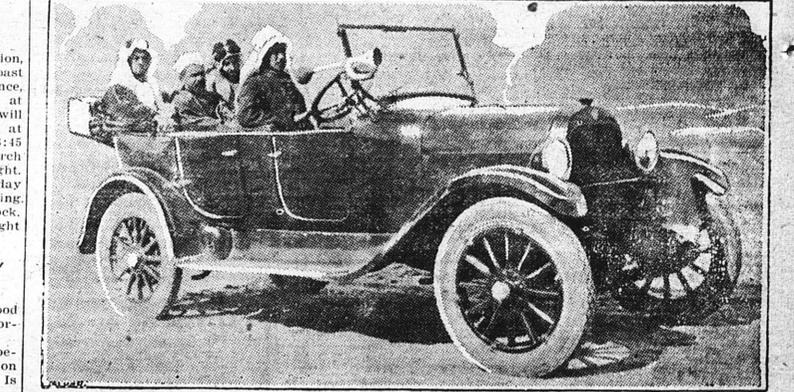

"When you hear the steamboat whistle Your paper is at the door."

U. S. Autos Sheiks' Steeds in Capture of Mecca

American-made motor cars were the steeds of wild desert sheiks in the capture of Mecca by Ibn-El-Saud, sultan of Nedjed. Fleet as are the racing dromedaries and the Arabian horses of purest pedigree, the Wahabi tribesmen found that there is nothing like the auto to cross the desert in a hurry, unless it be airplanes. Mecca is now in the control of the Wahabis (or "puritan" Moslems). The car shown is bearing staff officers of Ibn-Saud.
