Keystone Hall On Main Street Is Now an Inn

Charles Strong and Charles LeBoeuf Open Cafe and Dance Hall

Charles Strong and Charles LeBoeuf, members of the Keystone Boosters' Club, have leased Keystone hall from the club, and transformed it into the Inn, a charming place where one may take one's friends for lunch or dinner and a dance.

Booths have been installed and the center of the hall roped off for dancing to the music of a player-piano. An alcove affords a semi-private place for card parties or special luncheons or dinners.

Stro-le Inn is open from 11 a. m. until 1 a. m. with dancing every day except Sunday. Roasts, sandwiches, oysters, etc., are served. Opened last Saturday, the inn is attracting a great deal of attention from transients as well as local people.

OSTEOPATHY and HEALTH TALKS

By Dr. Bruce Castle Apartments

Bring the children. Non-development in children as well as low vitality in the adult is usually due to some hidden lesion which is often discoverable and removable only by the trained Osteopath. In fact, many of the weaknesses and diseases of adult life are traceable directly to lack of attention to the body structure during the growing years, such attention as only the Osteopath can give.

What intelligent parent now allows his or her child to grow to maturity without the benefits of Dental inspection and care? They do not want their child to grow up with crooked or defective teeth, but that is a detail of minor importance compared with the crooked, defective spines, the distorted chest, the undeveloped physical and mental qualities resulting from neglect to take the child to the Osteopath for inspection and care. Proper Osteopathic attention to the growing child will very often result in better health, a better constitution, better hearing, better eyesight, better mental development and better disease-resisting ability and vastly better ability to take his share of the joy of living.—Adv.

Irish Confetti Barred at Ball at Moose Hall

Legion Auxiliary St. Patrick's Dance Will Be Held Tonight

Although this is St. Patrick's Day, although it is the day on which all sons and admirers of Old Erin usually go the limit, guests at the Legion Auxiliary dance at Moose hall tonight are requested not to bring Irish confetti. There will be plenty of the other kind, good music—and ah, by the way, five dollars will be awarded, given away. It'll be a good party—as the Auxiliary parties always are.

Oriental Tea Is Greatly Enjoyed By Women's Club

Guild hall on Arlington avenue was prettily decorated, with articles from Japan and China forming the setting for the Oriental tea given for the benefit of the building fund of the Women's Club.

The hostesses, Mrs. James L. King and Mrs. A. Shriner, were assisted in entertaining the club by Mesdames A. W. Meiner, Guy L. Mowry, Thomas Moran, John McMillan, Lovell Ott, and J. R. Winters. They were attired in Japanese or Chinese costumes.

Seated on either side of the entrance hall were two small Japanese girls, Yuruka and Sulme, in native dress, holding Japanese brass plates to receive the silver offering.

Miss Toshie Kiyomura, in dress of a young Japanese girl, explained the native dress of the Japanese and the occasions upon which certain costumes were worn. She also explained the tying of the obi and the significance of each different bow. The houses and customs of the Japanese were explained, and a beautiful tea set of Japanese ware was shown.

Mrs. W. E. Fischer of Long Beach played "Valse Arabesque," by Theodore Lock, and "Mountain Stream," by Sidney Smith.

A number of little Japanese girls from the elementary school gave a parasol drill.

Readings by Miss Maxine Brown, "Mrs. Wiggs' Philosophy" and "Beauty and Endurance," ended the program. A social time was then enjoyed.

Among the works of art displayed were Japanese prints, sprays of Japanese cherry blossoms, a Chinese dragon embroidered in gold on a black background, Chinese singer jars, and many other objects from these lands.

'He Who Gets Slapped' Coming

Scene from "He Who Gets Slapped"

Victor Seastrom's sensational production of Leonid Andreyev's world-famous play, "He Who Gets Slapped," will be shown to Torrance patrons Tuesday and Wednesday. Lon Chaney has the featured role, supported by Norma Shearer, John Gilbert, Tully Marshall, Marc McDermott, Ford Sterling, Clyde Cook, Ruth Kink, and others. "He Who Gets Slapped" is the picture which caused Charlie Chaplin and Rex Ingram to acclaim Seastrom "the greatest of all" directors. The critics were unanimous in praise of it. "The finest production yet," "It has everything," "The outstanding event of the year," "Don't miss it." "It will be held up as a model by all producers," are some of the things the reviewers penned in the eulogies of the work of the genius Seastrom. "Lloyd Hamilton's newest comedy, "Good Morning," provides the mirth on the program. A Grantland Rice Sportlight, "Olympic Mermaids," will also be shown.

King Players in Screaming Farce All During Week

Positively the funniest farce-comedy of the season is John Golden's latest laugh success, "Just Married," which is being presented this week by the Charles King Players, with Dudley Ayres and Rose Ludwig at the Mission theatre, Long Beach.

"Just Married" is all about a bibulous chap who stumbles onto a French ocean liner and awakes after his first night on board to find himself in the same deluxe stateroom with a charming young woman, who is clad in exquisite robes de nuit. A delicate situation, you'll admit, but, in the language of the street, "You ain't heard nothin' yet!" That is only the first of a series of delicious complications which make "Just Married" the greatest laugh producer seen in years.

The play was written by the authors of "Abie's Irish Rose" and "Nightie Night," and is just the sort of fun-maker which might be expected to flow from two such gifted pens. It ran for two solid years in New York, was a tremendous hit in Chicago and Boston, and has just been released to stock companies. Director Charles A. King is advising patrons to make their reservations early.

Commencing Sunday, March 22, the King Players will offer "Chicken Feed," another John Golden success which has achieved tremendous popularity all over the United States.
