"Roaring Rails" at the Torrance

Scene from "ROARING RAILS" Released by Producers Distributing Corp.

There's no stopping Harry Carey! He's fast achieving the greatest popularity of any screen Westerner. Certainly "Roaring Rails," his new Hunt Stromberg production, which will be shown tonight and Saturday at the Torrance theatre, will boost him still farther toward the very top.

Harry Carey proves his versatility by his portrayal of a totally different role from anything he has had heretofore, and establishes himself as an actor of unusual appeal.

Edith Roberts is an adorable heroine, while Wallace MacDonald and Frank Hagney are outstanding villains.

Tom Forman's direction possesses vigor and remarkable depth of feeling, and the scenes—actually photographed in northern Oregon—are different and extremely beautiful.

"Roaring Rails" is an ideal entertainment that the whole family will enjoy.

Willard Louis as "Villain"

Irene Rich and Willard Louis in "THE MAN WITHOUT A CONSCIENCE" A WARNER "CLASSIC OF THE SCREEN"

WHAT'S ON AT THE LOMITA

Last Times Tonight—Zane Grey's "The Thundering Herd," a Bobby Vernon Comedy, and News.

Saturday—Harold Lloyd in "Now or Never," Pete Morrison and his horse "Lightning" in "The Empty Saddle."

Sunday—Lloyd Rathburn's Girl Revue and "A Man Without a Conscience," with Willard Louis.

Monday and Tuesday—"Sackcloth and Scarlet," with Alice Terry, and Tom Mix in "Wagon Trails."

The title role in "The Man Without a Conscience," the photoplay at the Lomita Sunday, calls for a super-villain who, rough shod, tramples on the rights of others, wrecks the lives of his friends, and sacrifices the love and life of a woman he loves, for gain. Willard Louis plays the part, but needless to say, he does not look like the conventional villain of the screen.

"The Man Without a Conscience" is one of the few pictures with many topnotchers in the cast. In addition to Mr. Louis, there are Irene Rich, June Marlow, "the girl with the soulful eyes," John Patrick, Helen Dunbar, Robert Agnew, William Orlamond, and others.

On the same program will be Floyd Rathburn's Revue with a company of seven people, and "The Leatherpushers."

Girl Revue at Lomita Theatre Sunday Shows

Announce Song and Dance Bill with Seven in Cast

Anyone who has ever traveled overnight in a Pullman will doubly appreciate the humor that abounds in "Now or Never," at the Lomita Saturday. This is one of Lloyd's most successful comedies, popular demand being responsible for this second edition.

An additional feature picture will be offered in "The Empty Saddle," featuring Pete Morrison and his horse "Lightning." The fourth episode of "Idaho" and a cartoon comedy close the bill.

Deviating from the regular policy of three acts of vaudeville on Sunday, the management of the Lomita theatre announces a big surprise entertainment for next Sunday. A big treat is in store for the patrons of this popular playhouse in Floyd Rathburn's Girl Revue, a company of seven people who know how to sing and dance from the big time circuits and who guarantee a half hour of real joy.

The picture program on the same bill is headed by Willard Louis in "The Man Without a Conscience." Tonight will be the last opportunity to see Zane Grey's "The Thundering Herd."

WARNED

A stranger who was rather deaf entered a little Scottish church. He seated himself in a front pew and from a capacious pocket took an ear trumpet. This he placed upon his head, preparatory to using it when the service began. An elder of the church who had never seen an ear trumpet before watched the stranger with grave suspicion. When the minister entered the man lifted the trumpet from his knee. Before he could get it any higher he felt a tap on the shoulder and heard the indignant voice of the elder: "One toot an' ye're out!"
