Seat Sale to Show Brisk

With this array of professional and local talent, the American Legion feels that they are offering an evening's entertainment that will long be remembered.

Members of the Legion post report an unusually heavy advance sale of tickets. Tickets may be secured at Sam Levy's store on Sartori avenue. Persons who already have bought tickets should exchange their reserve seat tickets for numbered tickets at Sam Levy's store, where a box office will be opened beginning at 10 o'clock Monday morning. People holding general admission tickets may also exchange them for reserve seats at Levy's store by paying twenty-five cents additional.

I says to Hudd

You hear an awful lot of talk these days about the ways of the younger generation, and their goings on and one thing and another.

But I don't see that the older generation is much like our folks used to be.

They seem to place the most importance on cars and clothes, and making a show, and don't pay much attention to the home any more.

And don't you think that if they made up their minds to try a little competition against the dance places and such, that the young generation question would adjust itself in a short while.

And the best kind of competition would be to make the home attractive and be friends with the kids.

And Pa and Ma would enjoy it too.
