Film Will Show History of Oil

Professor Sedgwick of U. S. C. Announces Event for Aug. 21

"The Story of Petroleum" is to be shown by motion pictures on Wednesday evening, March 21, at the University of Southern California, when Professor Allan E. Sedgwick, head of the department of geology presents a film of the petroleum industry under the supervision of the United States Bureau of Mines and financed by the American Petroleum Institute. The film will be shown at 7:30 on Wednesday evening in the Trojan Law School Auditorium, 3660 University avenue, Los Angeles, and is open to the public without charge.

Tracing the stages and phases of the oil industry from the geologist in the field to the finished product in the refinery, the various scenes have been taken throughout the United States and depict as nearly as possible all of the conditions of prospecting, drilling, production, transportation, refining and marketing of petroleum. "Each of these operations is illustrated in a very interesting and instructive manner by animated diagrams which show the various steps in the operations on locating, recovery and refining of petroleum," states Mr. Sedgwick, who is a consulting geologist in petroleum. "The government is offering this motion picture in order to acquaint the general public with the details of the petroleum industry, in order that they may more fully understand and appreciate the conditions and problems and difficulties under which the active in the field sometimes work."

P. E. Broadens Its Educational Plan for Co. Employees

Further broadening of the employee's education available to workers of the Pacific Electric comes with the inauguration of a class in public speaking, announcement from the railway's headquarters stated today. A total of seven subjects are now being taught, free of all cost to employees, it was stated.

The move to provide still another subject for the hitherto complete list was decided upon owing to the interest manifested and success accompanying previous classes. At this time more than 600 Pacific Electric employees are availing themselves of the study opportunities offered and since the plan was inaugurated forty years ago in excess of 2,000 workers have enrolled in one or more of the classes conducted.

The educational work of the local railway is carried on under the supervision of Earl W. Hill, educational director. Two rooms, located in the Pacific Electric building have been set aside for exclusive use as class rooms. Desks, blackboards, typewriters, books, paper and other supplies are supplied by the railway. The subjects now being taught are: traffic management, public speaking, higher mathematics, personal leadership, business English, shorthand and typewriting. Classes are held from 4:45 to 5:45 p. m. and in the evening from 7 to 9 p. m. The board of education has contributed to the success of the plan by furnishing instructors in certain of the classes. Employees successfully completing courses are awarded diplomas certifying to their accomplishments and industriousness. As manifesting the interest of employees in the studies being given a recent class in personal leadership had an attendance record of 98.5% and upon reorganization of the class applications exceeded the capacity of the class room by 50%.

This Servant will work for $1.40 a week

THE modern housewife in Southern California is not concerned with the "Servant Problem." Electricity—your modern servant—will work for you for $1.40 a week—20 cents a day—relieve you of all the burdensome tasks of your household and do them exactly as you want them done. The following program of a week's work in the average modern home can easily be accomplished by the use of electricity for $1.40 or less:

- Cooking (21 meals)
- Refrigerating
- Washing
- Entertaining
- Ironing
- Lighting
- Cleaning
- Sewing

Add up your present bills for cooking, ice, lighting, and the week's laundry. Compare this total with $1.40 for the use of electricity and note the balance in favor of this modern servant.

If you are not already using electricity to perform the services listed above, it will pay you to call at your local Edison office or your electrical dealer and investigate the appliances you are interested in.
