LOMITA PIONEERS WILL LONG REMEMBER YULETIDE OF 1911

By BIRDA PADDOCK LOMITA.—Christmas Day and many arriving, the street cars and buses will be crowded with families arriving to spend Christmas here, families leaving to spend Christmas with relatives elsewhere. A hundred-mile drive for the Christmas dinner will be considered a trifle, and Not so, 20 years ago, our first Christmas here. Few guests arrived and few families left for the Christmas festivities. There were two reasons. Most of the early settlers were chicken ranchers with livestock to feed, chickens, turkeys, goats, cows and horses. The other reason was transportation. Roads? There weren't any! The family conveyance in most cases was the horse and buggy, and the roads! The road to San Pedro was through the pasture land where you stopped every few yards to let down and put up gates. The only road to Redondo was over the old Camino Real where, after a rain, you had to cross a lake by the old Vetter dairy. The only road to Long Beach was Ocean Avenue, a narrow, dirt road, and to Los Angeles, Main street and Nigger Slough had not been drained. No buses and a P. E. car, perhaps once in two hours. You changed cars at Hermosillo and waited anywhere from a half hour on for the Lomita car. There were no electric lights on the Christmas trees 20 years ago, because there was no electricity in Lomita. Houses were lighted by oil lamps, and Rochester lamps were quite the thing in our best families, while the proper wedding gift was an oil lamp with bowl and shade decorated with pink, blue, or green roses. Swains Carry Lanterns There was no gas. Cooking was done on oil or wood ranges and houses were heated by wood and oil stoves. The oil stoves were very stylishly decorated in baby blue. So muddy were the roads even a week after a rain that young blades like Henry and Bill Kettler, Charlie Smith, Percy Large, Ben Paddock, Elmer Crittenden and Clyde Blaine wore rubber boots when they went sparking the young ladies. The roads being pitch black (no street lights) they carried lanterns. Arrived at the young lady's home, a gallant swain would hold an oil lamp by the piano while a young lady played and the crowd sang such favorites as "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Popping corn (all the early settlers raised popcorn) making candy, and playing games furnished dissipation for flaming youth. That Terrible Frost of 1911 Christmas Day 20 years ago dawned fair and lovely and ended with the most terrible frost known in California in many years. Lomita settlers had not planted many trees so the frost loss was light but in the orange districts the thermometer fell as low as 11 degrees. Not only the oranges were frozen but the trees also and what had been a scene of beauty Christmas morning was nothing but masses of blackened trees on New Year's Day. Old timers in Southern California will never forget Christmas 1911, its coldest Yuletide. But Lomita pioneers — or old timers of any other community — will tell you that they had a Merry Christmas then and what is more they expect to have it again this year. It's a great day and little things like depressions are forgotten by those who are able to get along, and for those who are feeling the pinch of this year 1931, there are agencies hard at work to make their Christmas a happy one as usual. mas morning was nothing but masses of blackened trees on New Year's Day. RAINS DELAY WORK ON CHURCH ADDITION, REPORT LOMITA.—The recent rains have delayed work on the addition to the Calvary Evangelical church. This will be built at the rear of the church and will contain a room for the primary department, a young people's room, a study for the pastor, and a broad corridor leading to the church platform. The labor is being donated by men of the congregation. The new structure will be 34 by 50 feet and is necessary because of the growth of the church.
