

Torrance Herald

With Which is Consolidated the Lomita News

Published Every Thursday
GROVER C. WHYTE, Editor-Publisher
1236 El Prado, Telephone Torrance 444
Torrance, California

MEMBER
California
Newspaper
Publishers
Association

MEMBER United Press
Associations

Published weekly at Torrance, California, and entered as second class
January 31, 1924, at the Postoffice at Torrance,
California, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Subscription Rates in Advance

Advertisers at Los Angeles County $5.00 per year
Advertisers at the U. S. Office of Los Angeles County $3.00 per year
Outside and Other Foreign Countries $5.00 per year
Single Copies $1.00

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF TORRANCE
Authorized a Legal Developer of Los Angeles County, Superior Court Case No. 17453, dated March 25, 1927.

Make Your Dollars Work

NORMALLY, the United States does ninety billion ($90,000,000,000) dollars of money business each year on five billion ($5,000,000,000) dollars of money in circulation. Each dollar makes about 17 round trips per year and does $17 worth of business.

The U. S. Department of Commerce says that more than one billion ($1,000,000,000) of the five billion ($5,000,000,000) dollars of money in circulation has been placed in stockpiles, under mattresses, buried in the ground or hidden in other secret places.

Money withdrawn from circulation spells dear money and low prices. Plenty of money in circulation means cheap money and higher prices for what you have to sell—and more jobs.

Those hoarded billion or more dollars in cash represent seventeen billion ($17,000,000,000) dollars less business activity per year in the United States. Seventeen billion ($17,000,000,000) dollars worth of business means approximately four million (4,000,000) jobs.

Every hoarded $250 deprives some man or woman of a year's work. Keep your money at work in a bank savings account—your best investment—from which place it will go forth through credit channels, to speed up industry, trade and employment—while steadily earning savings bank interest for you.

Third Of A Billion In Bonds Outstanding In Los Angeles Co.

LOS ANGELES.—(SPE.)—Los Angeles county now has an outstanding bonded indebtedness of $273,000,000, the major portion of which is due directly toward the 46 incorporated cities within its borders.

These figures were shown in the report filed with Chairman E. W. Wright of the board of supervisors by E. W. Payne, and are complete for the year 1931.

The bonded indebtedness directly against the county government is only $64,000,000 of the total. This is divided: roads, $28,000,000; farm and hospital buildings, $1,000,000; and new jail of justice, $35,000,000. Special county improvement and other districts, including those turned for acquisition and improvement, drainage, flood control, library, park system, and recreation and other funds, $25,000,000, $25,000,000 in bonded debt. The largest item in this group is $23,000,000 for flood control.

Elementary school districts have outstanding bonds of $65,225,000, with high school districts owning bonds totaling $54,284,000.

The report showed the city of Los Angeles owes in bonds $241,550,000, with other incorporated municipalities owing a total of $45,225,000.

The outstanding bonded debt of other cities in the county is as follows:

- Alhambra, $1,200,000; Arroyo, $400,000; Avoca, $275,000; Azusa, $225,000; Bell, $400,000; Beverly Hills, $1,750,000; Burbank, $75,000,000; Chatsworth, $22,500,000; Compton, $20,000,000; Covina, $174,000;
- Quincy City, $1,700,000; El Monte, $500,000; El Segundo, $257,000; Glendale, $1,200,000; Gardena, $150,000; Hawthorne, $246,000; Hemet, $200,000; Huntington Park, $250,000;
- Inglewood, $1,750,000; La Brea, $22,000; Long Beach, $12,000,000; Lynwood, $200,000; Manhattan Beach, $200,000; Maywood, $12,000; Monrovia, $1,125,000; Montebello, $400,000; Monterey Park, $1,000,000; Pasadena, $2,000,000; Pomona, $1,000,000;
- Rancho Beach, $50,000; San Fernando, $750,000; San Gabriel, $22,000,000; San Marino, $100,000; San Pedro, $2,500,000; Sierra Madre, $250,000; Signal Hill, $225,000;
- South Gate, $1,500,000; South Pasadena, $257,000; Torrance, $21,000; Tujunga, $1,000,000; Vernon, $425,000; Whittier, $1,000,000.

Assessors Begin Making Personal Property Lists

Canvass of Every Home in the County of Los Angeles Undertaken by Deputies

Canvass of every home and business establishment in Los Angeles county has been started this week by 500 deputy field assessors, making taxable personal property. The deputies were sent out by E. W. Higgins, county assessor, following completion of a special instruction period.

Every home, store, factory, theater and farm from Standhope Valley to Catalina Island will be visited by one of the assessors, with expectation that the canvass of personal property will be completed by May 15.

In the area outside Los Angeles city, 250 deputies, 50 of whom are women, will make the canvass. Los Angeles city has 250 deputies in the field, 50 per cent being women.

In Torrance the work is being handled by Edward Charles and Mrs. E. W. Hamilton.

In addition, 250 junior assessors will canvass banks and mercantile establishments. All were selected by civil service examination.

Joining the national campaign of President Hoover against hoarding of money, Assessor Higgins says that all his deputies would advise all persons visited against "hoarding."

The assessor explained that money deposited in banks carries a personal tax assessment of only about one dollar per thousand dollars, whereas money which is "hoarded" and may come to light upon death of the owner, carries a tax rate of about $42 a thousand under the inheritance tax laws.

Besides this parallel there is another to be noted about this man who now takes the spotlight in Washington: in directness, sense of human rights and service, tolerance and democracy, he is a true inheritor from Thomas Jefferson.

John N. Garner has elements that make up a typical political career.

Old American Stock

The log cabin is only the corner stone. There was the old fashioned country school, a small, bare, unpainted building located at the edge of a pine clearing in the little settlement of Prairie Blossom, up near the Oklahoma border, where he was born November 22, 1868.

He was a frail boy, but like Theodore Roosevelt he overcame this weakness in living the outdoor life. Walking three miles to school every day, milking the cows, feeding the stock, plowing, planting and harvesting, and later riding the ranges cowboy fashion, developed in him at maturity a good, strong constitution.

He needed it for the tremendous work he was to do in Washington. There was something else important in the making of Jack Garner, his ancestors, running back to pre-revolutionary times, Virginia colonists for the most part, had been the fine American types. His grandfather had homesteaded land in Prairie Blossom in 1842.

So far as actual schooling went the boy acquired only the usual three "R's." But an uncle gave him a candlelight course in the higher branches and started him on the road to learning which he pursued on his own, at twenty by striking out for Clarksville, county seat of Red River county, Texas, to study law in an office. Two years later his shingle was hanging out in Uvalde, another county seat. There he has made his home ever since.

In Uvalde he has been lawyer, county editor, county judge, member of the legislature, banker, neighbor and friend. Everyone there knows him like a brother; and the district, the fifteenth, has been sending him to Congress, without a break, for the last 25 years. Even Republicans, in lots of from 2000 to 5000, have been voting for him regularly.

But the Valley of the Rio Grande, over whose vast spaces he has campaigned on horseback, in buckboard, by rail and on foot, has sent him with no more enthusiasm than Washington has received him. Frontier, rough-hewn Texas, and polished, effete and somewhat superior Washington join in regarding John Garner as a man who has the right of way.

Courage His Keynote

It was an act of courage which introduced to the national capital the slender, young man from Texas with the bright inquisitive eyes and the air of eager interest. In Garner's maiden session President Roosevelt sent over to the House the Cuban Reciprocity Bill, and Democrats as well as

Republicans supported it. The new member was of the small minority who voted no. That vote might easily have meant his political suicide. But he did not make a mistake; instead of inviting oblivion, by a single stroke he won the respect of all members regardless of party.

Thereafter the career of Jack Garner was steadily on the upward climb with the "clutch" in low gear for the long pull; in other words, a climb that took hard work, intense application, expert knowledge both of men and measures, the ability to compose differences, avoid pitfalls, make friends and fight foes. All this developed leadership of the highest order.

With Him America is First

To Garner the domestic problems of America have been foremost, those of foreign relations secondary. That conviction has been the key to his entire public career. In Washington and Uvalde he is a home man. And that is his political creed; he is a home man in America. This explains why he rejected the opportunity to become leader of his party on the Foreign Affairs Committee and set his course for the Ways and Means Committee. Once there he proved that the choice had been well made both for himself and the country. He became a recognized authority on the tariff and financial matters.

Ranking minority leader, he led the fight against the Fordney-McCumber and Smoot-Hawley tariff bills and the Mellon tax plan.

Fought Caesarian

During the World War, however, international affairs engaged Congress almost exclusively. The responsibility fell upon Garner of contacting President Wilson in the White House. The chief and his lieutenant held conferences every afternoon and became strong friends. John Garner was a great jollier, Jack Garner was a veritable tonic, as well as valuable counselor, for the great Democratic leader, Woodrow Wilson.

Garner led the fight against the caesarian of Speaker Joe Cannon and rendered the country heroic service in liberalizing the rules of the House. And equally great services in other directions are to his credit as all may learn who read his legislative record, for in every line and not a word of America as interpreted by one who understands. A man of the common people he has kept himself in the currents of humanity, always responsive to the broader interests of the Nation, a constructive lawmaker for the masses.

Plain Home-Loving Man

A plain man he is; a plain, home-loving couple are he and his wife, who has been his secretary and adviser for all the thirty years in Washington. Their simple and unpretentious life she described in a sentence when, in avoiding honors that friends would have thrust upon them when he was elected Speaker, she said, "We are just two people from Texas." Theirs, by the way, has been one of the most remarkable political partnerships the capital has ever known. Representative Garner has been right on all American questions that have come before him. He has been right in labor, on issues of human rights, on the regulation of great corporations, in opposing the "slender" friends of the Boulder Dam project when friends were needed. He is a man who knows the science of government, America's needs and the people.

He is true presidential timber.

From Log Cabin to Leadership

JOHN N. GARNER

Plain Democrat with 28 Years of Service to His Country

From a mud-chinked log-cabin in the timber and farming country of Northern Texas to the Speaker's chair in the House of Representatives is a good American-sounding tale. It was made by a good American—John N. Garner.

There was another somewhat similar life's journey, which began in a Kentucky log cabin and ended in the White House. It looked as though Speaker Garner also will extend his political itinerary to include the famous home of Presidents.

Besides this parallel there is another to be noted about this man who now takes the spotlight in Washington: in directness, sense of human rights and service, tolerance and democracy, he is a true inheritor from Thomas Jefferson. John N. Garner has elements that make up a typical political career.

Old American Stock

The log cabin is only the corner stone. There was the old fashioned country school, a small, bare, unpainted building located at the edge of a pine clearing in the little settlement of Prairie Blossom, up near the Oklahoma border, where he was born November 22, 1868.

He was a frail boy, but like Theodore Roosevelt he overcame this weakness in living the outdoor life. Walking three miles to school every day, milking the cows, feeding the stock, plowing, planting and harvesting, and later riding the ranges cowboy fashion, developed in him at maturity a good, strong constitution.

He needed it for the tremendous work he was to do in Washington. There was something else important in the making of Jack Garner, his ancestors, running back to pre-revolutionary times, Virginia colonists for the most part, had been the fine American types. His grandfather had homesteaded land in Prairie Blossom in 1842.

So far as actual schooling went the boy acquired only the usual three "R's." But an uncle gave him a candlelight course in the higher branches and started him on the road to learning which he pursued on his own, at twenty by striking out for Clarksville, county seat of Red River county, Texas, to study law in an office. Two years later his shingle was hanging out in Uvalde, another county seat. There he has made his home ever since.

In Uvalde he has been lawyer, county editor, county judge, member of the legislature, banker, neighbor and friend. Everyone there knows him like a brother; and the district, the fifteenth, has been sending him to Congress, without a break, for the last 25 years. Even Republicans, in lots of from 2000 to 5000, have been voting for him regularly.

But the Valley of the Rio Grande, over whose vast spaces he has campaigned on horseback, in buckboard, by rail and on foot, has sent him with no more enthusiasm than Washington has received him. Frontier, rough-hewn Texas, and polished, effete and somewhat superior Washington join in regarding John Garner as a man who has the right of way.

Courage His Keynote

It was an act of courage which introduced to the national capital the slender, young man from Texas with the bright inquisitive eyes and the air of eager interest. In Garner's maiden session President Roosevelt sent over to the House the Cuban Reciprocity Bill, and Democrats as well as

Republicans supported it. The new member was of the small minority who voted no. That vote might easily have meant his political suicide. But he did not make a mistake; instead of inviting oblivion, by a single stroke he won the respect of all members regardless of party.

Thereafter the career of Jack Garner was steadily on the upward climb with the "clutch" in low gear for the long pull; in other words, a climb that took hard work, intense application, expert knowledge both of men and measures, the ability to compose differences, avoid pitfalls, make friends and fight foes. All this developed leadership of the highest order.

With Him America is First

To Garner the domestic problems of America have been foremost, those of foreign relations secondary. That conviction has been the key to his entire public career. In Washington and Uvalde he is a home man. And that is his political creed; he is a home man in America. This explains why he rejected the opportunity to become leader of his party on the Foreign Affairs Committee and set his course for the Ways and Means Committee. Once there he proved that the choice had been well made both for himself and the country. He became a recognized authority on the tariff and financial matters.

Ranking minority leader, he led the fight against the Fordney-McCumber and Smoot-Hawley tariff bills and the Mellon tax plan.

Fought Caesarian

During the World War, however, international affairs engaged Congress almost exclusively. The responsibility fell upon Garner of contacting President Wilson in the White House. The chief and his lieutenant held conferences every afternoon and became strong friends. John Garner was a great jollier, Jack Garner was a veritable tonic, as well as valuable counselor, for the great Democratic leader, Woodrow Wilson.

Garner led the fight against the caesarian of Speaker Joe Cannon and rendered the country heroic service in liberalizing the rules of the House. And equally great services in other directions are to his credit as all may learn who read his legislative record, for in every line and not a word of America as interpreted by one who understands. A man of the common people he has kept himself in the currents of humanity, always responsive to the broader interests of the Nation, a constructive lawmaker for the masses.

Plain Home-Loving Man

A plain man he is; a plain, home-loving couple are he and his wife, who has been his secretary and adviser for all the thirty years in Washington. Their simple and unpretentious life she described in a sentence when, in avoiding honors that friends would have thrust upon them when he was elected Speaker, she said, "We are just two people from Texas." Theirs, by the way, has been one of the most remarkable political partnerships the capital has ever known. Representative Garner has been right on all American questions that have come before him. He has been right in labor, on issues of human rights, on the regulation of great corporations, in opposing the "slender" friends of the Boulder Dam project when friends were needed. He is a man who knows the science of government, America's needs and the people.

He is true presidential timber.

Special Evening Services to Commemorate Pre-Easter Week

—at Narbonne High School

Gregory Reuter, an experienced debater and speaker, will talk on "Washington as a Man" in the Narbonne auditorium some day this week. Three years ago, Mr. Reuter took third place at the national oratorical contest on the Constitution, winning a trip to Washington, D. C., where he was entertained, together with other students, by President Coolidge at the White House.

Later Mr. Reuter was on a trip to Europe. He has debated all over England and has met and been entertained by the royalty of England. He is a graduate of San Pedro high school and is now attending freshman at the University of California.

This speech on "Washington as a Man" is said to be the best effort. "We are fortunate," stated Miss Holloway, the coach of the Narbonne students preparing for the oratorical contest, "in having him come here to inspire and encourage the Narbonne speakers."

Junior high students at Narbonne who are interested in dramatics have been trying out for membership in the Junior Dramatic club, which is sponsored by Miss Holloway. The membership in the club this semester was so large that this method was resorted to in order to eliminate those lacking dramatic talent.

Those trying out have to read for expression one of the following poems: "The Children's Hour," "Paul Peters's Ride" or "The Highwayman."

Work is progressing rapidly on the operetta, "Tulip Time," which will be presented in the Narbonne auditorium, March 18, at 8 p. m., by the Glee club under the direction of Mrs. Nuttall. "Tulip Time" is a musical comedy with thrills and excitement galore, having as its setting, Holland, during tulip time.

The plot centers around two American college students who go to Holland under the leadership of their professor, a tutor of botany, to study tulip culture. The two boys, however, become more interested in two charming Dutch maids. The boys cleverly put their professor in such a predicament that he is sent to jail. And then the real excitement begins.

This two-act musical comedy is said to be different from any that has been presented at Narbonne before. Nineteen songs, including solos, duets, and whole choruses, will be sung. In addition to this, Miss Burrows' dancing classes will give five specialty numbers and several more in the chorus.

Gene Tucker and Dick Jones have been assigned the leads. Both have had experience in dramatics and glee club work. The complete cast is as follows:

Christina, a charming Dutch girl, Gene Tucker; Ned Baxter, an American college student, Dick Jones; Hendrick Van Oubater, burgomaster of Osendorf, Jack Coakley; Hans, a young Dutch apprentice, Warren Aber; Katrina, a village maiden, Gene West; Aunt Anna, Christina's guardian, Helen Clark; Theophilus McPindle, an authority on botany, Carl Williams; Dick Warren, a fellow student of Ned, Myron Schmidt.

As there are to be no reserved seats this year, all are asked to be prompt in arriving.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Whyte have as their house guest, Mrs. George Long, of Tacoma, Washington.

Friends of Mrs. J. W. Wotton will be glad to know that she is recovering from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gourlier were dinner guests of friends in Los Angeles Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoll of El Centro were Torrance visitors this week.

Miss Anna Mondrales left Tuesday to spend a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Vonderath at Brawley, California.

Patronize Herald Advertisers

for Drinking Water
Call
H. G. MAGEE
Torrance 263-J
Distributor of FRESPURO Artesian and Fossiliferous Water, TROJAN
Ginger Ale, Lime Rickey,
Seltzer Water, Champagne
Type Orange.

PURSE STOLEN
Mrs. Jean Nourse, 1231 Arlington, reported to police Wednesday that her purse had been stolen and a watch and purse containing about $15 stolen.

AMERICAN SOCIETY
AUXILIARY MEMBERS
TO SATELLE
More than 30 members of the American Legion Auxiliary met last night to select the proceeds to be raised by their gifts of candy and cigarettes for the disabled veterans. Bridge furnished entertainment for the afternoon.

O. E. S. TO GREET WORTHY
GRAND MATRON
Torrance Chapter, No. 288, Order of the Eastern Star, will contain with a 6:20 dinner at Masonic Temple Wednesday, honoring Worthy Grand Matron Elsie Mae McGiffin of the State of California, who will make her official visit to Torrance at this time. Participating in the reception will be Torrance, San Pedro, Wilmington and Point Pinos
chapters. The dinner will be followed by a business meeting, and a specially arranged program will conclude the evening. Reservations for dinner must be made by Saturday with Mrs. Andrus or Mrs. Parks. A charge of $1.00 a plate will be made.

SEWING CLUB MEETS
Mrs. J. Hoskins of 2017 Grammery, entertained members of her sewing club at her home Thursday with a four-course luncheon.
Guests included Mrs. Ed Little,
Mrs. H. Hemmuth, Mrs. Ed
Schwarz, Mrs. L. C. Miller and Mrs. W. Dobrick, and Mrs. Palmé and Mrs. Desch of Redondo Beach.
Mrs. Palmé recently entertained at her Redondo home with a farewell party honoring Mrs. Gruenke of Cleveland, who has been visiting
Mrs. Hemmuth and other friends in Southern California.

Driver Hurt As
Car Hits a Tree
Oscar M. McCauley, Jr., 1932
Prospect avenue, Redondo Beach, was taken to the Inland Empire
Torrance Memorial hospital Monday afternoon, about 1:30, suffering from cuts and bruises. Mc-Cauley's car collided with a tree on Pennsylvania avenue near Camino Real. He is employed in the dairy department of the Los Angeles county health department.

HAVANA.—(U.P.)—The government is planning a Cuban agricultural colony in Cuba to care for destitute farmers.

Kidney
Acidity Breaks Sleep
If you feel old and run-down from getting up nights, backache, leg pains, nervousness, dizziness, headache, burning, itching, and bladder weakness, caused by "Kidney Acidity," want you to quit suffering right now. Come in and get what I think is the greatest medicine I have ever found. It often gives big improvement in 24 hours.
Just ask me for Cystex (dis-tex),
which is only 75¢ and I guarantee it quickly combats these conditions and satisfies completely, or return empty package and get your money back.

Dolley Drug Co., Torrance

Continental
Stores
TWO TORRANCE STORES:
1639 Cabrillo Ave. and 2223 Torrance Blvd.
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

EGGS Strictly Fresh Doz. 17c
Seal MILK Tall cans, 3 for 14c
Cigarettes All Brands 2 for 25c
Specials Below Effective March 17 to 23, Inclusive

Globe A-1 Pancake Flour Both 30c
Vermont Maid Syrup For
M. J. B.
Coffee 35c
Pound can

OXYDOL 20c
New Large Package
LUX 9c
small size 21c
large size
RINSO 9c
small size 21c
large size
Lifebuoy Soap 3 cakes 19c

EASTSIDE
Malt can 39c
DINA-MITE
Breakfast
Food 22c
CAMPFIRE
Marshmallows
Ecol Package Contains
1/2 lb. packages
Wrapped in moisture
proof Wax Paper 22c
Royal BAKING POWDER
6-oz. can 21c
12-oz. can 40c

CRISCO
1 lb. 20c
3 lbs. 57c
DEL MONTE Early Garden
Peas 2 No. 2 Cans 23c
MALTED MILK
Crackers 19c
1-lb. Pkg.
Cocoanut Rolls
Thursday, Friday, 2 for 5c
Saturday

Plain Democrat with 28 Years of Service to His Country

From a mud-chinked log-cabin in the timber and farming country of Northern Texas to the Speaker's chair in the House of Representatives is a good American-sounding tale. It was made by a good American—John N. Garner.

There was another somewhat similar life's journey, which began in a Kentucky log cabin and ended in the White House. It looked as though Speaker Garner also will extend his political itinerary to include the famous home of Presidents.

Besides this parallel there is another to be noted about this man who now takes the spotlight in Washington: in directness, sense of human rights and service, tolerance and democracy, he is a true inheritor from Thomas Jefferson.

John N. Garner has elements that make up a typical political career.

Old American Stock

The log cabin is only the corner stone. There was the old fashioned country school, a small, bare, unpainted building located at the edge of a pine clearing in the little settlement of Prairie Blossom, up near the Oklahoma border, where he was born November 22, 1868.

He was a frail boy, but like Theodore Roosevelt he overcame this weakness in living the outdoor life. Walking three miles to school every day, milking the cows, feeding the stock, plowing, planting and harvesting, and later riding the ranges cowboy fashion, developed in him at maturity a good, strong constitution.

He needed it for the tremendous work he was to do in Washington. There was something else important in the making of Jack Garner, his ancestors, running back to pre-revolutionary times, Virginia colonists for the most part, had been the fine American types.

His grandfather had homesteaded land in Prairie Blossom in 1842.

So far as actual schooling went the boy acquired only the usual three "R's." But an uncle gave him a candlelight course in the higher branches and started him on the road to learning which he pursued on his own, at twenty by striking out for Clarksville, county seat of Red River county, Texas, to study law in an office.

Two years later his shingle was hanging out in Uvalde, another county seat. There he has made his home ever since.

In Uvalde he has been lawyer, county editor, county judge, member of the legislature, banker, neighbor and friend. Everyone there knows him like a brother; and the district, the fifteenth, has been sending him to Congress, without a break, for the last 25 years.

Even Republicans, in lots of from 2000 to 5000, have been voting for him regularly.

But the Valley of the Rio Grande, over whose vast spaces he has campaigned on horseback, in buckboard, by rail and on foot, has sent him with no more enthusiasm than Washington has received him.

Frontier, rough-hewn Texas, and polished, effete and somewhat superior Washington join in regarding John Garner as a man who has the right of way.

Courage His Keynote

It was an act of courage which introduced to the national capital the slender, young man from Texas with the bright inquisitive eyes and the air of eager interest. In Garner's maiden session President Roosevelt sent over to the House the Cuban Reciprocity Bill, and Democrats as well as

Republicans supported it. The new member was of the small minority who voted no. That vote might easily have meant his political suicide. But he did not make a mistake; instead of inviting oblivion, by a single stroke he won the respect of all members regardless of party.

Thereafter the career of Jack Garner was steadily on the upward climb with the "clutch" in low gear for the long pull; in other words, a climb that took hard work, intense application, expert knowledge both of men and measures, the ability to compose differences, avoid pitfalls, make friends and fight foes. All this developed leadership of the highest order.

With Him America is First

</