China Clipper Reaches 'Home'

Here is the new China Clipper as she circled over San Francisco Bay preparatory to landing at Alameda Airport, which will be the new permanent home of the four million dollar flying boat that is destined to inaugurate trans-Pacific airmail and passenger service.

Narbonne High School

A P. T. A. surprise party will be held in the Narbonne gymnasium November 20, at 7:30 p.m. Admission will be 25 cents, which will include the cost of refreshments. Paper money will be given each one at the door. Each of the roll call classes will be in charge of some entertainment at the various booths that will line the walls of the gym. There will also be numerous games of skill, with prizes going to the winners. "White elephants," which students are donating, will be used for the prizes and also for the fish pond.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, and beverages are to be served. In addition, candy and popcorn will be on sale. The proceeds of the "surprise party" will go into the P. T. A. treasury to help needy students.

Lyndall Phillips, Lucille Worthington and Dorothy Key, the new Jane Addams girls, entertained at a dinner in honor of the old members on November 5. The affair was given at the home of Dorothy Key.

Guests of honor included Evelyn Jones, Patricia Bullock, Akiko Kato, Jean Wilson, Marjorie Irvine, Vada Courtney, and Miss Griffin, Miss Wylie and Miss Mason.

Impromptu speeches are to be given by Mrs. Hardie's public speaking club in the different rooms concerning the P. T. A. surprise party. The students practiced their talks during roll call November 6. Each one will be assigned a roll call room in which to deliver a talk.

The Bookworms will also aid the P. T. A. in their surprise party November 20. They will have charge of the white elephant booth, assisting with the fish pond.

WE DRIVERS
A Series of Brief Discussions on Driving, Dedicated to the Safety, Comfort and Pleasure of the Motoring Public, Prepared by General Motors.

No. 1—CURVES AND TURNS

NO MATTER how expert we may be as drivers, we are all apt to fall into habits of driving that don't quite measure up to what we really know is right.

For instance, we all know that we ought to be careful about passing cars, especially when another car is approaching from the opposite direction.

And yet there possibly isn't one of us who hasn't, at one time or another, moved over in the road to pass a car, and then wondered if we would get around in time. Now here's an interesting thing about that. When we try to pass a car that's going forty miles an hour, it's just the same as if we tried to pass a standing string of cars 120 feet long. In other words, it's like passing eight cars parked bumper-to-bumper in the road. If we try to pass one going sixty, it's like trying to pass a line of more than sixteen cars standing in the road, and sixteen cars in a row will reach half a block. This is probably a new idea to most of us. If we kept it in mind, we would never pass a car unless we were sure that there were no oncoming cars for a good long distance ahead.

But turning aside to pass is not the particular kind of turning that we are interested in discussing here. What we are now concerned with is taking curves and corners. From time to time in these discussions we will find that the same old laws of Nature will be involved. Foremost among them will be the laws of momentum, and momentum plays the major part in going around curves. Because momentum not only wants to keep us going, but going in the same direction. When it is trying to make us go straight instead of curving our course, it operates under an assumed name, if you please. For then we call it "centrifugal force."

Now of course we all know what centrifugal force is. We feel it when we go around curves. Highways and railroads are banked at curves to offset centrifugal force. Aviators bank their planes at turns by tipping them with the controls. But even though we all know about centrifugal force, few of us realize how powerful it is, and how much greater it gets the faster we go.

A 3000-pound car making a turn of 500-foot radius, has to overcome a centrifugal force of only about 156 pounds at 20 miles an hour. But at 30 miles an hour, that force has grown to 380 pounds, and at 40 it is nine times as great as at 20—over fourteen hundred pounds trying its best to push us off the road! The only thing that keeps us on the road in the first place is the friction between our tires and the road. The minute the centrifugal force gets stronger than the force of that friction, off the road we go.

The trouble is that we often don't realize how fast we're going. On road trips, for instance, after we have driven at a certain speed for a long time, it seems a small matter to increase our speed a few miles an hour. Then after a while we may do the same thing again. In other words, we keep putting forward our basis of comparison till by-and-by we have lost our usual sense of how fast we are going. Then, the first thing we know, we are face-to-face with a turn or even half way around it and we feel Old Man Centrifugal Force trying to push us off the road.

So what do we do? We clamp down the brakes. It's the only thing we can do when we find we're going too fast. But just the same, approaching that corner too fast has kept us from taking it as we should have liked to. For if conditions permit, it is often desirable to increase speed as we go around a curve. As long as our rear wheels are not being retarded, but are actually pushing us around the curve, our steering is effective and our car is under control.

The long and short of it is that we can't take liberties with the laws of momentum and centrifugal force. Man's speed laws may not always be observed, but Nature's speed laws always are!
