Points Out Need For Better Oil In New Motors

Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, Inc., refiners of Mobiloil and other Gargoyle lubricants, have announced that Mobiloil is now distributed throughout the Pacific Coast area by General Petroleum Corporation and Gilmore Oil Company exclusively. This information was recently released by H. W. Taylor, manager of General Petroleum's lubricating department.

Preceding this announcement, a series of meetings was recently conducted throughout the Pacific Coast, during which E. F. Hallock, chief automotive engineers of Socony-Vacuum, vividly presented the story of Mobiloil development for motor car manufacturers. Also prominent among the speakers was H. W. Taylor, of Los Angeles, and F. E. Whitesell of New York, sales manager of the Socony-Vacuum motor oil department.

"Five years ago," explained Hallock, "the normal average automobile motor used about a quart of oil in every 100 miles of travel, at the rate of 60 miles an hour. Today, the normal motor, traveling at the same speed will cover a thousand miles to use but a quart of oil at the most. In the average ultra-modern automotive power plant of today, eight gallons of oil per minute pass through the lubricating system as compared with three gallons of oil per minute five years ago.

"These facts, plus greatly increased motor temperatures and the further fact that six to twelve thousand cubic feet of dust-filled air is pulled through the crankcase in traveling a thousand miles, are indicative of the problems that face petroleum engineers in providing adequate lubricating oils for the motor miracles of 1936. Our present oils, tailor made to stand up and properly lubricate under such terrific beatings, are a further improvement of the Cleargol, double-solvent refined Mobiloil, announced to the motoring public a year and a half ago as the exclusive product of the Socony-Vacuum laboratories."

During the oil meetings conducted at General Petroleum's various offices, Mr. Taylor ex-

Colossal Gyp Put Over On Olympic Candidates

world famous Sonja Henie was called off after the promoters of the show had spent thousands of dollars in trying to make an ice rink on a field where the daytime temperature stood at 120 degrees. As well try to freeze ice in the crater of a volcano.

All the money that should have gone to pay the way of the athletes to New York was poured down the sewer in the waste water that ran off the ice rink. But the officials managed to salvage enough dough to pay their way back to the show, though what good the officials might do in New York with no athletes to do the running is a profound mystery.

The whole affair is so putrid that it will stink in the nostrils of every sport fan for years to come. After the boys who make the show had spent weeks in training, giving up all normal pleasures of youth to keep in condition to compete, giving up chances for jobs, in the belief that if they were good enough to place one-two in the Coliseum try-outs that they would be taken care of in expense to New York for the final endeavor, all they got was a letter saying the committee would not be responsible for their transportation or maintenance there. If they went, they must finance themselves.

The committee had the nerve to give the boys the names of a couple of places in New York where they could get lodging at 75 cents and $1.25 a day. As well give them a list of flop houses where they could get a bed for a dime.

Just what alibi the committee can offer for the colossal gyp that was put over on the athletes will be interesting to hear. There never can be an alibi that will satisfy those who believed in the good faith of the committee, and helped to promote the far western try-outs so that the boys who did the running and the jumping and pole vaulting might have some return for their hard work, and perhaps reap the glory of representing the United States at the Olympic Games in Germany.
