FORD LONG BEACH PLANT OPENS

The great Ford plant at Long Beach, employing over 1700 people, has resumed assembly operations and is now turning out more than 120 cars and trucks a day. Inset shows Mayor Carl Fletcher of Long Beach driving one of the completed cars off the assembly line the first day of the open-house week, as Ira B. Groves, Ford branch manager, points the way.

Directly benefiting the entire Southwest, the Long Beach plant of the Ford Motor Company is again in active operation. Employment has been given to more than 1700 people whose wages alone will amount to nearly $2,000,000 annually. In addition, millions more will be spent for tires, batteries, and other supplies, with local manufacturers, whose employes will in turn profit from greater business. The increased purchasing power of workers in this area will have a stimulating effect on business of every kind.

Ford cars and trucks sold in Southern California and Arizona are now assembled at the Long Beach plant by workers who are paid a minimum $5 daily wage and work an average of 40 hours a week. Every car assembled means an average of 65 hours employment for a plant worker. During the open-house week, visitors numbered close to 2,000 daily.

EX-PRINCIPAL of Redondo school IS ARRESTED

Hal H. Gillis, 40, former principal of the Grant school district near Redondo Beach, was scheduled to appear in Los Angeles municipal court Thursday of this week for preliminary hearing on charges of having misappropriated more than $400 of the school's funds, derived from sale of materials salvaged from the school after it had been wrecked.

Gillis was arrested late last week in Redondo Beach by police who took him to the county jail, and on the first day placed him in a padded cell "for self-preservation" according to the police report.
