Two Corsages Are Smarter Than One

A very new formula for chic is the double-corsage, quite the rage now in smart European circles. Violets, bouquets of spring flowers, rose buds, and other delicate flowers are posed high at the neckline and again at the waistline to give a bright touch of color.

The vogue for flowers as a dress or suit accent, has grown in popularity, with the use of modern adaptations of "old-fashioned" bouquets. There is something refreshing about these, when placed on the dark frock, and they are worn on pastel sheers for afternoon, as well.

grut, and THEN try to bring him out of it.

There's been some talk, you know, of clinics where you pay a fee to keep well, pay nothing when you get sick. Very similar is an auto property damage and liability form of insurance that decreases each year. If you DON'T have any accidents.

This plan could be worked out in many ways. Pay Dr. Hoxie nothing when your tooth gets a cavity, pay Pop Roberts at Dole Drug Annex a goose egg for the food you don't eat, write Harvel Guttenfelder a check for the gas and oil you don't use. You could kick in to the theatre for the pictures you don't see, give up cash to Judge Lessing for the traffic tickets you don't get, pay Schultz and Peckham for the new Ford you wished you had.

This system might work if everyone paid off in pre-Hitler marks or Confederate greenbacks, but then where would we be? Maybe it would do well just to forget the whole matter.

Good Luck Awaits State Fishermen

Reports of game wardens from 55 California counties indicated today that it is a safe two-to-one bet that the state's 223,000 anglers will have better luck with bait than with flies when trout season opens May 1.

Field reports to the state fish and game commission here also indicate that, although high water may hamper early efforts, the season generally will be one of the best in recent years.

Winter rains have kept most rivers and streams high and muddy, while a majority of commission reports forecast high water from melting snowpacks around season-opening time.

Congressman Corden at the Capitol

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(Special to The Herald) President Roosevelt's battle to reorganize the federal courts is but a repetition of the historic battle made a provision that even his inauguration on March 4, 1801, Jefferson succeeded in appointing John Adams as a Federalist.

The Federalists had lost the election and they proved to be bitter-enders. The Federalists, on Feb. 13, just a short time before they were to surrender their authority to Jefferson, on March 1, passed a bill which established six federal circuit courts, and 13 separate district courts.

There were six judges on the supreme court at that time, and one of these judges was in poor health. In order to prevent Jefferson from appointing a judge to the supreme court, the act passed by the Federalists made a provision that from and after the next vacancy that shall happen in the said court, it shall consist of five justices only, that is to say, of one chief justice, and four associate justices.

Not only did the Federalists create judgeships thruout the country, but they also created the offices of 42 justices of the peace in the District of Columbia.

Jefferson and his followers were greatly incensed at this action just previous to his inauguration. The last days of Adams' administration were occupied by his appointment of Federalist partisans to fill the newly-created judgeships, continuing into the night at 12 o'clock of which he was to go out of office. Because of this, those judges have gone down in history as the "Midnight Judges."

After his inauguration, Jefferson and his followers attempted to undo the work of John Adams. They accused the Federalists of creating these new judgeships for the purpose of taking care of favored politicians, as well as to block the liberal program of Thomas Jefferson in the second year of his administration, the act passed by the Federalists was revised. This program of Jefferson brought down severe criticism upon him.

Fearful that the new act by the Jeffersonians would be declared unconstitutional by the partisan judges then filling the courts, the Jeffersonians passed another act abolishing the new June and December terms of the supreme court and restoring the old February term, but not the old August term, thereby forcing the adjournment of the supreme court for 14 months. This was an unusual situation, in that the legislative department of the government suspended the functioning of the supreme court for more than a year in order to prevent review of legislation enacted affecting it.

For this reason, the Marbury vs. Madison suit, filed in December, 1801, did not come up for hearing before the supreme court until Feb. 9, 1803. This suit was brought to force James Madison, secretary of state, to deliver the commissions to certain of those appointed as justices of the peace in the District of Columbia by Adams, all of which commissions had not been delivered when Jefferson became President. Jefferson characterized the suit as a political effort to use the courts to interfere with executive prerogatives, and an effort to prevent efforts by his supporters in Congress to repeal the Circuit Court Act.

The opinion of the supreme court as handed down by Chief Justice Marshall was to the effect that, while Marbury had a right to his commission, the supreme court had no constitutional right to issue a mandamus to a member of the executive branch of the government. This opinion was history-making in that it was the first pronouncement of the power of the supreme court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional.

HISTORIC OPINION
For this reason, the Marbury vs. Madison suit, filed in December, 1801, did not come up for hearing before the supreme court until Feb. 9, 1803. This suit was brought to force James Madison, secretary of state, to deliver the commissions

BETTING TAX PROPOSED

Proposal that a "painless" tax of between five and 10 percent of the gross take of the mutual betting machines at Santa Anita race track, to increase county revenues, was made to the board of supervisors today by W. B. Stewart, Los Angeles business man.

Stewart said he reasoned that "those who bet and win would gladly pay, while those who bet and lose do not care."

"With the take at approximately $30,000,000 a season, such a tax would yield the county treasury between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and I understand that additional funds are badly needed."

"This would be a just tax and a painless tax, as owners of the track are collecting 100 percent annual dividend on their investment. Those who bet and win will gladly pay, and those who bet and lose don't care."

MEGLIN STARS IN "GAY 90'S"

A "good neighborly" gesture on the part of the Meglin Dance studios to send a troupe of its famed Meglin Kiddies to participate in the Kiwanis club's "Gay 90's" show at the Civic Auditorium tonight and Friday evening will serve as an introduction of the noted talent development school to local residents.

A branch of the Meglin Studios will open at the American Legion clubhouse on Carson street. Registration and information will be available there after 9:30 Friday morning. The Meglin firm, in conjunction with Fanchon and Marco, will have two headliners among the trained youngsters to appear with "The Gay 90's" tonight and Friday.

For Adults and Children
They are Lois Ray who was in the motion picture "Maytime" with Jeanette MacDonald and Jackie McGee, Bobby Brown's double in the films "Let's Sing Again" and "Rainbow on the River." Lois is an exceptionally talented youngster whose stage ability is credited to her Meglin training. Jackie, who will appear here as master of ceremonies for the Riddle Revue, gives great promise of developing into a movie starlet of first magnitude.

The Torrance branch Meglin Studio is open to both adults and children in the study of dance, drama and voice, according to Caroline Hamilton, district manager. Bess Richardson will be the registrar here and will be glad to give complete information about the courses to be offered at the Legion hall.

Cox Wins Narbonne Cross-Country Run

The eighth annual cross-country run, held at Narbonne's Griffin field recently was captured by Wayne Cox, with Joe Eunte and Homo Hirata coming in second and third. The time was comparatively slow because of the cold weather and wet track.

Forecasters had a bad day, with all the favorites faltering back at the finish. Homo Hirata set the pace, with the favorites, George Peck, Everett Peck and Bob Leski, following close behind all the way only to be nipped at the tape by Wayne Cox, who had come driving from behind to win first honors. The finish was the closest in the history of the run, a mere ten inches separating the first three men.

L. A. COUNTY'S SIZE HAS NOT ALWAYS BEEN 4,083 SQ. MI.

Were Los Angeles county as large today as it was in 1851, a department head with county-wide duties might be forced to travel by airplane, auto or blimp.

Back in Feb. 18, 1850, the county's boundary lines originally included 4,840 square miles, little more than its present area of 4,083.21 square miles.

But in 1851 the county suddenly developed growing pains and expanded rapidly, its area leaping to 34,520 square miles, officially set by repeal of the old boundary act and substitution of a new one. At this time the county included what are now San Bernardino and Orange counties, plus a good part of the present Kern, Inyo and Riverside counties.

San Bernardino county was created by a slice off the eastern side of the county in 1853, and in 1868 Kern county was formed, leaving Los Angeles only 4,900 square miles.

Thru subsequent corrections and minor changes, and formation of Orange county, Los Angeles gradually reduced in area. Its present figure, officially set by action of the board of supervisors in 1936,

ABALONE TIDES NOW PREVAIL

Good low tides will prevail each day from now until the end of April—providing excellent sport for the abalone hunter. All are good clam- and fishing tides, while those from April 11 to 18 are low enough for abalone taking. The big lows this year all come in the middle of the week; so if takers want the lowest of each series of low tides, they must plan to get away on Tuesdays, Wednesdays or Thursdays.

Do not forget your abalone irons with the seven-inch mark filed on them, nor your angling license. The warden will probably ask you for your license.

IT'S HARD NOT TO BE SNOOTY

Of course, the folks who live at Rolling Hills are not snooty—but no doubt it requires a great deal of self-control at times not to elevate at least an eyebrow when meeting those unenlightened persons who live in the flat lands.

Then, too, in Rolling Hills one never has to inhale the delicate fragrance of oil wells along with the roast leg of lamb.

We often wonder why anyone whose business requires his daily presence in the harbor district would want to live anywhere but Rolling Hills. It's the only high ground home property for miles around—and only a few minutes from downtown Long Beach. Two to ten acres. Some pieces as low as $2500.

Come on out today. The map below shows you how to go.
