No More Stepped On Toes at Plaza

With the installation of the new Kroehler push back seats in the loge section, the Plaza theatre in Hawthorne now presents the maximum in comfort and entertainment, according to Mr. Calvi, manager of the theatre.

The new chairs allow the patron to remain seated while persons are entering or leaving the row. By simply remaining seated and pushing back on the seat, an extra six-inch clearance is created in the row allowing free and easy passage.

The push back chairs are also equipped with a spring which automatically retracts the seat out of the row as soon as the patron rises to leave the theatre. Plaza patrons can now enjoy the show without the old scramble resulting in stepped on toes, bumped knees and jaded dispositions.
