

Streets Re-surfaced at Small Cost Here

County's Growth Superintendent Says Crowns Becoming Hard

Motorists driving over this city's recently resurfaced streets on warm afternoons have become accustomed to the swish-swish of their tires rolling over the semi-fluid oil that "bleeds" with hot weather.

Pedestrians crossing streets have gotten many a shoe-ful of the gravel that worked down to the curbs from off the crown of the improved avenues.

WILLIAM GASCOIGNE
... years for street sweeper

Growth of Los Angeles county and particularly Los Angeles city may bring the total population almost to the 3,000,000 mark by the time the 1940 census is taken, beginning a few weeks hence, in the opinion of experts who compute the budget requirements of the county government.

This was disclosed this week from two sources, when it was learned that the county department of budget and research has estimated the county's present population at 2,730,900 while engineers for the Los Angeles department of water and power already are preparing to erect a steam power plant which is expected to be needed by 1941 to supplement the Boulder dam supply.

Furthermore, plans are under way for a study of further power development on the upper Colorado river that may lead to construction of a dam and power plant at Knight's Crossing at the head of Lake Mead in 1944, it was learned from Watt Moreland, water and power commissioner.

The county experts' estimates are being based on voting registration, enrollment in the 140-odd school districts in this and other communities of the county, and records of the county assessor, tax collector and regional planning commission. The figure of 2,730,900 is more than a half-million more than the 1930 figure of 2,208,490.

Climatic conditions, liberalized old age pensions, migration from the dust bowl areas of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas and not a few Jewish refugees from Germany are the principal reasons for the county's steady growth, in the experts' opinion.

San Francisco city and county and Alameda county may make a good showing in the 1940 census by reason of the Golden Gate Exposition having attracted a number of persons there for the duration of the fair, but some of these will return to Los Angeles county afterward.

Both motorists and pedestrians have, on various and sundry occasions, asserted that the re-surfacing job was poorly done.

But that is a distinctly erroneous conclusion.

Used Stone Specifications

It won't be long, says William "Andy" Gascoigne, veteran street superintendent, until the improved streets will stop "bleeding" oil on warm days. Furthermore, the excess gravel has been removed entirely now and will no longer have to be shoveled back to the curbs.

Periodic shoveling of the excess gravel struck on the crown of the streets resulted in building up hard surface that will last for years without cracking, the street superintendent points out.

And Gascoigne points out that the rock and oil mix was laid according to tested and approved state specifications.

"We completed the first part of a general street improvement program at a cost of about one-half cent per square foot of re-surfacing," Gascoigne said. "If we had laid 'hot-stuff' on the streets, the cost would have been six times as great—or about three cents a foot."

Wants More Equipment

"This was a real saving" by following the state specifications were able to resurface more streets so far this year than any time in the past. However, we are not thru yet. The city street department is watching the laying of a new type of pavement, using a hot asphalt formula, in Compton and we may try out that mix here on a residential street."

Gascoigne, like other municipal department heads, has submitted a list of his equipment needs to the council which that body is wrestling with the city budget for 1939-40. Tops among his desires is a street sweeper and cleaner. Whether or not he'll get this and several other pieces of equipment which he says are badly needed to enable his department to function efficiently is a moot question.
