People and what they are doing

Chant to Candidates

By "Ken Savvy"

On the eve of an election we survey the vast collection of the wise men that would like to represent the people of the city.

And in truth it is a pity that we can't elect the lot. Some of course will be rejected and will feel somewhat dejected.

To discover that their line was not so hot!

Such ambition must be noted and the candidate be quoted.

"I'm the man to fill the vacant chair.

"I've got reforms, brains and prestige.

"I'll eradicate each vestige of the vices that was once so rampant there!

"And if I am but elected and my plans are once perfected.

"You may rest assured that I will do my best.

"That your taxes will be lower and with all that's in my power.

"I will labor every hour to protect the people's interest.

"Without rest.

"With such promises aplenty, and by each one of the twenty."

Who would serve the people, O so-o-o well.

How do we know who's best suited is the question muchly mooted.

Cast our vote or stay at home, O what the hell!

"At the time Poet (?) "Savvy" composed his Chant to Candidates there was some talk about there being 20 candidates in the local race.

He refused to make a change in his poem when he learned there are only 15, asserting that his Muse was unable to supply a metered line to fit that number.

These poets are temperamental beings and the editor declined to press the point—hence the wrong number in the contribution.
