

Pioneer Lomitans Have Three Sons in Armed Forces

Things are pretty quiet around the B. J. Gannon home at 2077 227th St., Torrance, these days. Time was when the attractive cottage and garden was a rallying place for all the kids in the neighborhood as they linked forces with the three Gannon boys and enjoyed life as only normal, vigorous boys can.

Today the Gannons are serving their country and Mr. and Mrs. Gannon eagerly await every mail for news about them.

Their oldest son, Rev. Bernard J. Gannon, 30, is a Catholic chaplain at the Pyote, Texas, Army air base. Father Gannon is a first lieutenant and has been in service since January after attending special chaplains' instruction at Harvard University.

Private James Gannon, 27, is married. He is attached to Fort MacArthur and recently has been assisting as cashier at the Los Angeles theater where the Army show, "Hey! Rookie!" was staged for many weeks. He joined the service about a month ago.

Serjt. Peter Gannon, 21, is at Camp Edwards, Mass., where he is an instructor in anti-aircraft corps. He enlisted last June.

Their father has been pumpman for the Narbonne Ranch Water Co. No. 3 for the past 12 or 14 years. The family has lived in this section since 1912.

"Vacations for Industrial Workers Help War Production."

—Says War Production Board

"Recreation should not detract from, but should forward the war effort ... recreation helps refresh and renew our minds and bodies for war work ..."

—Says Paul McNutt, Chairman, War Manpower Commission

TAKE A VACATION THIS YEAR, but TAKE IT CLOSE TO HOME

No matter what your job, you're probably working to help win the war. You need a rest and should take it this year, but take it close to home.

In order to lessen the burden on transportation facilities, don't travel far ... the ODT urges you to limit your travel and to plan the place where the annual vacation is spent. "Bonafide vacation travel," says ODT, "includes only a single round-trip to and from the vacation place."

Whether you plan an out-of-town vacation, or to take a "rest at home," you can add to the enjoyment by proper RECREATION EQUIPMENT. We have an exceptionally complete line of: Fishing Tackle, Golf, Baseball, Hunting, Archery, Tennis, Table Tennis, and Badminton equipment.

successful conclusion of this course, he will receive a commission as a flight officer or a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve.

Cadet Roberts is the son of Mrs. P. D. Maggiora of 705 Sartori ave., and his stepfather is in the Navy. The potential pilot attended Narbonne high school in Lomita and was accepted as a cadet at Jackson, Miss.

Townsend Club No 1

By BETH PAIGE

A large audience attended the affair given by our club last Friday evening. Hillman Lee officiated at the program which included two original poems, one by Mrs. Lottie Wade of Lomita, and the other by Gilbert J. Miller of Hermosa, whose contribution was read by Mrs. Carol Brown. Delegations from Los Angeles clubs, some from Manhattan, were among the guests.

Beautiful baskets of flowers added to the beauty of the hall.

Tomorrow evening our usual social and dance will be held and the public is cordially invited.

WEEKEND AT RANCH

Enjoying a weekend at their Northridge ranch were Mrs. E. L. Albrecht, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ghio of San Pedro.

He is eager to get back in action. He still limps some, but he knows from official score sheets that he personally accounted for one Zero and its crew with the deadly Texas accuracy he put behind the shots from his twin .50 guns in the tail of the Fortress.

He may have not more, he hopes he did. It is refreshing to hear him tell of the trip. He takes it seriously of course, he is reverently thankful that he is saved. But, he is eager to get back after spending his 30-day leave with his sister here, relatives in Denver and with his family and friends in San Antonio, Texas.

Functioned as Soldiers Last Saturday and Sunday night, Turnbull had large quantities of the best fried chicken and all the trimmings that the skilled hands of Mrs. Bass could provide. He talked about the folks at home, about the natives, and about the "rang" on the Fortress. There is love and respect in his admiration and regard for those who shared with him those 66 days when most everyone figured the entire crew was lost.

"On the island the natives treated us fine," he said. "They didn't have much but they shared it with us. They even rationed themselves to see that we had enough. They have had experience with the Japanese. In some cases the Japs have taken over islands, moved the women away for their own purposes and put the men in labor crews. Being white men and Americans we were rated high with them."

"We never would have made it except for the skill and executive ability of our skipper, who was wounded before we knew we had to abandon ship, and our navigator, Lieut. Dorwart. All of our outfit functioned as American soldiers should. It makes me proud to be in the Army. It makes me optimistic about what is going to happen to the Japs. When will it be over? Gosh, I wish I knew, but for the duration I am going to be there doing my best."

Turnbull left Monday for Colorado and will go from there to San Antonio. He will report to the air force replacement center at Salt Lake City at the end of his leave.

Fortress Gunner, Lost 66 Days, Visits in Lomita

praises his superior officers, especially Maj. Thomas Classen, pilot and skipper of the Fortress that started on a routine flight Feb. 9 and, after knocking four or five Zeros out of the sky, managed to outrun enemy planes before finding his ship was so badly damaged it would have to be abandoned and the crew take to life rafts.

Published accounts of this saga of the sea have given many a newspaper reader a warming thrill, but to sit down and talk with this young Texan, who before he went in the Army made his living as a meat cutter, gives one a sense of satisfaction regarding our chances in this great global conflict.

Lived on Thin Fare Living on emergency rations and hoping the wind would bring them to safety, taking the whole affair not lightly but more or less in stride, never knowing whether the dawn of another day would greet them or not, these nine men staged an epic voyage. Finally arriving on a sparsely settled island in a group in a coral reef, they managed to beach their rafts and convince the natives they were friendly Americans. Then the boys from the Fortress started a 55-day wait for rescue.

Details of the methods used, the trip made by part of the crew and the finding of a marooned sailor named Wiley on the island, would furnish material for a couple of novels. It is obvious that much of the tale cannot be given in all of its intimate detail now but in the minds of these carefree young Americans it will live forever.

The boys lived on green bananas, cooked part of the time in coconut milk; rather poor chickens, lobsters and some fish but they made the most of them. They made friends with the natives, who hate the Japanese, and the natives aided them to get their messages to the rescuers who were scouring the seas for signs of the craft or men.

Eager to See More Service Turnbull had the Silver Star for gallantry in action pinned on his water-soaked, sun-baked blouse by Gen. Harmon, commanding officer of the air squadron in that area. He was officially notified that he had been awarded the order of the Purple Heart, and was told indirectly of the posthumous awards. What will happen to them now he says he doesn't know.

When Beecham and his sub arrived he was sent to Vallejo to aid in the repair of another ship badly damaged in the raid. When the naval authorities permitted Mrs. Beecham sailed from the islands with 1500 women and children, many half clothed, on the S. S. Aquitania for the mainland. No words can give a true picture of that trip, she says. Crowded, food scarce, space at a premium, the women and children finally landed and she joined Beecham, who after his work was done, was again assigned to submarine duty and went out with the Argonaut.

After the Argonaut had spent 55 days on the submarine war patrol, 47 of which the ship was submerged, Beecham was given a citation for his extraordinary devotion to duty and commendation for the fine work he had done on board the ship.

And so the Walteria Civic Association has placed a gold star on its community service flag for Chief Beecham although he has not been officially reported as lost.

Three Firemen Get Salary Increases Fire Chief J. E. McMaster and two fire department captains received pay raises retroactive to May 1 by action of the city council Tuesday night. The chief's salary was boosted from $220 to $250 per month while Capt. J. E. Winters and Jake Benner had their pay raised from $195 to $205.

Throughout the nation it was expected that bond purchases in May would exceed the normal monthly average because of the strenuous sales campaign conducted by the Treasury Department during the second War Loan drive.

"The public now realizes more than ever before the urgency of buying bonds to the limit, both as an aid in winning the war and as a hedge against inflation," Lee said. "As a result, we expect a marked increase in volume and in average bond purchases by individuals as an aftermath of the drive."

Plans for a continuing campaign to promote War Bond sales among industrial workers in the Torrance area were discussed at a luncheon meeting held yesterday at Christy's Cafe. The gathering was the first of regular monthly meetings arranged by Chairman Lee with personnel managers of leading war plants, and was attended by 15 industrial representatives. Others present were William J. Kempen, representing the merchants; Postmaster C. Earl Conner, Hugh J. Sherfy, Jr., and Grover C. Whyte.

PROCLAMATION

In accordance with the request of President Roosevelt, I, T. F. McGuire, Mayor of Torrance do proclaim Sunday, May 16th, to be and urge the citizens of Torrance to cooperate in its observance, and to make that observance specific by purchasing additional War Bonds and Stamps.

"I AM AN AMERICAN DAY"

Civic and educational groups are asked to join in exercises calculated to impress upon the citizens, both native-born and naturalized, the special significance of citizenship in this Nation.

This is YOUR day—because you are an American. Your wife's day, your children's day, your neighbor's day. A day to prove your loyalty to our great Nation. And there is no better way to prove your devotion than to LEND YOUR DOLLARS for War Bonds and Stamps.

TOM F. MCGUIRE, Mayor of the City of Torrance.

War Bond Quota for County Set at $25,627,500

As its allotment of the $750,000,000 national quota, Los Angeles county residents must buy $25,627,500 worth of War Bonds this month. The figures were announced by Hillman Lee, local War Savings Committee chairman, who expressed confidence that the quota would be met.

Service Clubs Fete Boys at Dinner-Meet

In what Rev. Paul M. Wheeler, vicar of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, said was a "graphic answer to recent disclosures concerning the rise of juvenile delinquency," Torrance youth personified by 65 high school boys were guests of the combined Torrance Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at a dinner meeting last Thursday night.

The youths were closing the single day's observance of National Boys' Week which was marked here by 34 filling civic and business posts for the day. As part of the program, a number of the youths read excerpts from letters they had received from friends who are now serving with the armed forces. Miss Irene Mills, long-time instructor at Torrance high school, also announced details of the "Gone With the Wind" directory of high school graduates which is being prepared for early publication.

Rev. Wheeler and James Lynch were co-chairmen of the meeting. They called on a number of service club members who are employers to recount their experiences with youth in industry. Among those who responded were A. K. Longren of the Longren Aircraft Co.; Phillip Martin of the Martin Tool and Die Manufacturing Co., and H. E. Keller, works manager of the Aluminum Co. of America.

They reported their plants were now employing many young people in part-time work after school hours and on Saturdays and found them most helpful. The employers also said that they could use more young people and this summer during vacation, plan to hire as many as can fill jobs.
