Illegal Flying Subject Of Sheriff's Parley

Called together by Sheriff Biscailuz, police chiefs and representatives of 45 cities in Los Angeles county met recently to wage a vigorous campaign against the mounting dangers of illegal flying.

The Army Air Forces, the Navy, the District Attorney's office and the Civil Aeronautics Administration and Board were represented at the Hall of Justice luncheon which resulted in the naming of a special committee to study and report on ways and means to end "flat hatting."

Joe Marriott, Sixth Region administrator for the C.A.A., will serve as adviser to the group. Capt. Dave Andrews of the Sheriff's crime prevention bureau suggested the group study means of controlling "unscrupulous, small-time operators who are permitting youngsters of 13, 14 and 15 to take up planes without bothering to ascertain if they even have a license."

Superior Judge A. A. Scott advised: "If we haven't the laws to control this situation, let's get the laws."

Comdr. Black said the Navy is now painting large numbers on all its planes and requiring pilots in its reserve aviation program to fly in flights.

The naval officer admitted that much of the buzzing is done "by hot-shot service pilots who come back from overseas with no regard for life—including their own."

"But where we can pin charges, we're cracking down," he added.

Rev. Whitcombe is from Toronto, and is associated with the Rev. T. T. Shields, D.D., president and founder of the Canadian Protestant League, in the pastorate of the great Jarvis Street Baptist church in Toronto and also in the editing of the Gospel Witness, a weekly of large circulation in Canada. Mr. Whitcombe is a specialist in the struggle in Canada between those forces desiring the historic Protestant heritage of liberty and the forces of the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The American Council of Christian Churches of California does locally what the National American Council does nationally. It stands for historic Bible Christianity as opposed to modernistic liberalism, socialistic collectivism and pacifism. The public is invited to these meetings. Dairy Industry In Broad 'Reconversion' Program

California dairymen, faced with insistent demands for dairy products and hampered by problems of production and distribution, both knocked lopsided by the war, are joining with the nation's giant dairy industry in a broad "reconversion" program for the tenth annual June Dairy Month.

Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson called on the nation's largest agricultural industry for a "continued maximum production of dairy products for adequate nutrition at home and abroad."

"The fighting war is over," Anderson said, "but the battle of food production continues. It is my hope that the entire dairy industry will again make June Dairy Month the occasion to impress on the public, both producers and consumers, the importance of the dairy industry."

California's dairy industry, which last year turned in a record production of 1,250,000,000 quarts of milk, with a total value of over $365,000,000, is organized for a broad public relations program to carry out the desires of Secretary Anderson, according to Alfred M. Gormley, chairman for June Dairy Month.

"This program of public relations during June Dairy Month becomes essential to the dairy industry as an aftermath of the war," Gormley said. "With the public accustomed to limited supplies while the conflict continued, the lifting of ration restrictions soon after the shooting stopped brought a tidal wave of demand for dairy foods.

Knowing that production last year in California and throughout the nation was at the highest rate in history and that it continues at wartime levels, the public has been insistent in its demand for all dairy foods."

Gormley said that the dairy industry has a job to convince the public that the milk pail in California does not hold enough milk to supply all demands. He pointed to the fact that while California dairymen increased their milk production almost double in a five-year period, the Increase in population of nearly two million people during that period far offset the increased production.

"Everyone wants milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and cream," Gormley said in pointing out that when people have plenty of money in their pockets, they want the best in foods, "but at the present rate of consumption, there just is not enough milk, to do all of this."
