Emergency Appropriation May Delay Fight On Child Care Centers' Future

The major fight on the Child Care Center question is obviously going to be delayed until next March or April, according to Assemblyman Glenn M. Anderson.

This delay, Anderson said, was brought about by Assembly Bill 360, an emergency appropriation measure that will provide for the keeping of these centers open until June 30th of this year.

Anderson said: "The measure will, I believe, be signed by the Governor, and will at least give us a breathing space from the former closing date of March 30, and will give those fighting for the continuation of these centers another three months to organize."

"From this view, the passage of Assembly Bill 360 was a victory on the part of advocates of Child Care Centers," Anderson was a co-author of this measure.

"However, it was only a minor victory," Anderson continued, "The real test will come this March or April when the question comes up on whether or not they should be continued beyond this session of the Legislature. The three months continuation we have secured is valuable, unless we can bring about the passage of a measure continuing these centers until the need no longer exists."

"One point we always overlook is: How can these centers operate with any degree of efficiency when they do not know from day to day, whether or not they will be operating the next month? Such uncertainty aside from being nerve wracking to the mothers, must surely deprive these centers of well-trained personnel. Why anyone would stay on a job with such an indefinite future is a marvel to me. I am advised, however, that these teachers are so enthused with this kind of work that they give up positions offering more money and a good tenure to help out in these centers."

It is understood that, if the state support continues, the centers in Torrance will remain in operation under the jurisdiction of the Torrance City Board of Education.

Torrance Memorial Hospital On ACS Approved List For Eighteenth Time

Surmounting the difficulties of postwar shortages of personnel and supplies, Torrance Memorial Hospital, Torrance, Calif., has been placed on the United States and Canada have qualified for approval following the 29th annual survey completed December 31 by the American College of Surgeons, according to the Approval Number of the College Bulletin just issued.

Jared Sidney Torrance Memorial Hospital is on the list for the 18th consecutive time.

Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, president and chairman of the Board of Regents, commented that in 1946 more was expected in the way of conformance with the requirements than could be required during the war when certain insuperable difficulties prevailed. For the first time since Hospital Standardization was started by the College in 1918, when only 89 hospitals were approved, there is a decline, Dr. Abell said, in the number of approved hospitals compared with the previous year. In 1945 the total was 3,181 approved, or 68 more than on December 31, 1946.

Dr. Abell continued: "The College by withholding approval from a few hospitals which have permitted themselves to sink into a sort of postwar lethargy, is endeavoring to correct the habits formed in wartime of abbreviating medical records, relaxing control of medical staff appointments, omitting some of the medical staff conferences which should be held at least monthly, delegating administrative responsibility to inadequately trained personnel, and the like. Compromises with the standards are no longer necessary, and most hospitals have ceased to make them. Because of the important role which hospitals play in the conservation of lives and health of the people, they should be leaders in the postwar effort to improve every type of welfare service."

Dr. Malcolm T. MacEachern, associate director of the College, declared that one of the factors upon which particular emphasis is being placed in analyzing post-war hospitals, is the competence of the administrator. He stated: "With growing recognition of the complex responsibilities of the administrative head of the hospital, and increase in facilities for training administrators through cooperation between hospitals and universities, there is no longer any excuse for appointing administrators who lack proper qualifications for the post. Hospitals can be conducted on a high scientific and humanitarian plane only when the administrative leader has thorough understanding of both the professional and the business problems and knows how to meet them. The public for its own protection should insist that politics be kept out of the hospital field. Administrators in all types of hospitals should be selected for their special capabilities and not because of political, religious, social, or business standing. Hospital administration is now an established profession to which admission should be limited to persons who combine specialized education and training with experience as executives in hospitals."

Dr. MacEachern stated that hospitals are reconsidered for approval each year—that the fact that a hospital is once approved does not mean that it stays approved—and listed the following summary of the fundamental requirements for approval:

1. Modern physical plant, assuring the patient safety, comfort, and efficient care.
2. Clearly defined organization, duties, responsibilities, and relations.
3. Carefully selected governing board with complete and supreme authority.
4. Competent, well trained superintendent responsible to the governing board.
5. Adequate and efficient personnel, properly organized and competently supervised.
6. Organized medical staff of ethical, competent physicians and surgeons.
7. Adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent medical supervision.
8. Accurate, complete medical records, readily accessible for research and follow-up.
9. Regular group conferences of the administrative staff and of the medical staff for reviewing activities and results so as to maintain a high plane of scientific efficiency.
10. A humanitarian spirit—the primary consideration being the best care of the patient.
