New El Prado
Trees Suffer

Many of the trees along El Prado, planted to take the place of the giant eucalyptus removed more than a year ago at the insistence of residents on the southeast side of the street, are dying for lack of care, it was revealed this week.

Those trees which are on improved lots are doing well, but those in vacant lots are uncared for and in bad condition, it was said. This is due, it is believed, to curtailment of park department work due to city economy. Parks also are suffering and lack of tree trimming has caused many complaints.

Trillingham
To Talk Here

Dr. C. C. Trillingham, county superintendent of schools, will address a combined meeting of the Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary club members and their wives at a dinner meeting to be held in the Woman's clubhouse on the evening of Nov. 3, it was announced this week.

The topic of Dr. Trillingham, who has guided the formation of Torrance City School District since the adoption of the City Charter last year, will be "American Education Week."

President E. B. Brown, of the Kiwanis club, said that Rotary and Lions clubs had been asked to join in the meeting in observance of education week.
