Ornaments in Demand For Hospital

An early plea for Christmas tree ornaments was made today by volunteer workers of the Childrens Hospital who each year decorate more than 80 trees for the patients.

Due to the prohibiting of ornaments made of paper or other inflammable materials in public buildings, the workers found themselves with a serious shortage.

Any ornaments, excepting those made of inflammable materials, could be used to brighten the rooms and corridors for the small patients during the Christmas season.

Persons wishing to donate these items are asked to bring them to the hospital at 4614 Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles.
