GI In Japan Labels Complaining Sergeants as 'Cry Babies'

Camp Haugen, Japan
June 14, 1951

Editor:
Recently you received a letter or two from a few of the non-commissioned officers of the 578th Engineer (Combat) Battalion. Also you received a letter from Sergeant First Class D. J. Skidmore. I would like to add a few words and feelings of my own to those of Sergeant Skidmore.

I read the clippings from your paper which contained the letters from these men. I also read Sgt. Skidmore's letter. I agree with Sgt. Skidmore.

Having served under him for eight months I think I am ready for combat duty. His training is thorough, and in my estimation, the best. He worked with us day and night. Always his best interests were with the men of the detachment. I believe I am speaking the thoughts of every man in his command.

I am a draftee. While under Sgt. Skidmore's command I never once saw him show preference to a National Guardsman. Also, he never cried once about being a veteran, or getting a dirty deal. He laughs about how stupid he was for signing up in the Guard, knowing what was going to happen.

So I feel that the men who wrote that letter are nothing but a bunch of cry-babies. Sgt. Skidmore has as much time in as almost any of them as a front-line soldier. During World War II he served in both theaters, was wounded several times, and yet I've seen him hoist large men on his back, go through some of the roughest training there is, and never once has he uttered a word of complaint. Never once did these other sergeants get down with their men in training. Sgt. Skidmore was with us through every phase of our training no matter what conditions prevailed.

These sergeants complained of medical care. Sgt. Skidmore has preached to us from the time the unit was formed until now: "Give these men nothing but the best in medical care. Go out of your way to help every one of them." He also added: "Even the goldbricks." He has followed his own words to a "T."

If this letter is published, which I hope it is, I know someone is going to say: "Well, Sgt. Skidmore is prompting his men to go against us now." That statement will not be true. This is my own idea, my own words. I have not seen Sgt. Skidmore in over two weeks, as I am an aidman away from the detachment.

Therefore, I think before they (the other sergeants) write something like they did, they should find out the whole truth, especially about these physically-disabled men, who in the first place falsely enlisted in the National Guard, hiding their physical disabilities so that they could collect gas money for their autos every three months from the government.

Yours truly,
A FRIEND OF SKIDMORE

MAN FOUND TIED UP

It was reported yesterday that Jack Vinik of this city, was found tied up in his place of business at 1927 West Carson Street. This was not the first time that Jack Vinik has found himself tied up and he hopes it isn't the last time. Mr. Vinik pointed out that he finds himself tied up in his work often. He claims it's relatively easy to become tied up since there is so much hand-tying of springs.

Mr. Vinik, conscientious owner of the Torrance Upholstery, says that business isn't GOOD business until it makes a friend, and as such, he tries to treat the customer as though he were the customer himself. The phone please, Torrance 1157. Special for this week only cushions repaired and rebuilt for just $2.95 each with this ad. Regular price $4.95. Make sure you bring in this ad with the cushions.

CHILDREN LEARNING TEXTILE PAINTING

Several children are now registering for the free adult summer course in textile painting held each Monday, and Wednesday nights at Torrance High School in room 202.

Children, along with adults, with no previous experience, are learning to use stencils and brushes in simple painting, in making their own designs of a charming nature on towels, handkerchiefs, shirts, blouses, dresses, skirts and linens. No experience is necessary for this course, as instruction is on an individual basis and each person is encouraged to proceed according to his own talent and ability.

Students are asked to go to the next meeting of class to register.
