County To Open Summer Camps

By ROY O. GILBERT, M.D., L. A. County Health Officer

More than 60 camps within Los Angeles County will be open this summer to children between the ages of 10 and 18.

Most of these camps are known as public or "organizational" camps, that is they are sponsored by organizations such as churches, school systems, youth agencies, and Scouting groups. The average cost per child in these camps will amount to roughly $20 per week, although arrangements have been made by public spirited organizations and individuals to provide free camping opportunities to children whose families cannot afford this expenditure. Five "private" camps at an average cost of $200 per month will also be open this summer.

Most camps are opening this week and will operate until school starts in the fall. Very few children will spend the entire summer at camp; the average stay will be about ten days.

A recent publication outlining Los Angeles County Health Department policies and standards for these camps has been recommended for national distribution by the United States Public Health Service, a fact that is perhaps more interesting to parents than it is to children, who are this week anxious "to get going."

Health Permits

All children's camps in Los Angeles County operate under health department permits which assure that proper health facilities are available and that sanitation standards are maintained under a system of regular inspections by health department personnel. Parents can be assured that their children will receive clean food, served on clean dishes; that they will be supplied with safe drinking water; that clean sleeping quarters will be provided; that swimming facilities will be inspected and sampled frequently; and that all camp wastes will be disposed of properly so that the camp environment will be free from health hazards.

Detailed information on individual camps and their programs is available from the Southern California Camping Association, 723 S. Figueroa St., Los Angeles 17, Telephone MI 8821.

Moose Lodge Dinner Set

A chicken dinner, prepared and served by the male members of the Torrance Moose Lodge, will be presented at the lodge hall, 1744 Carson St., Saturday June 26, prior to the installation of the new Chapter officers, James Stiles, committee chairman, announced this week.

"The men of the lodge are observing the most important event in the Chapter's year," said Stiles, "by taking over the duties of the women in preparing the regular monthly dinner. Members and officers of the lodge will serve the dinner from 6 to 8 p.m."

Dave Harbison, George Clay, Leo Wilhelm Sr., and Burl Beddo are members of Stiles' ways and means committee. Tickets for the dinner will be on sale at the lodge hall.
