

Back to School Beauty Plan Stresses Day by Day Care

"Along with those cherished skirts and sweaters you tuck into your back-to-school trunk, slip in some good resolutions to make the most of yourself during the coming school year," beauty authorities are advising college coeds.

Good advice it is too, for a seedy looking you on Monday might easily be the cause of a dateless you on Saturday night. Decide now to formulate a simple day-by-day plan of beauty care to insure a constantly up-to-par appearance.

CLEANSE SKIN
Make a not-to-be broken ritual of twice daily skin cleansing. Rather than drying soap, use a liquid cleanser to remove the last trace of dirt and stale cosmetics. Most of these cleansers reach deeper into pore openings and contain special ingredients to destroy bacteria, the cause of many a skin blemish.

Should a hickey show up just before the big prom... despair not, for a bit of medicated cream will do wonders in safely banishing the crasy thing. Just a word of warning... hickies come from many causes—and one of them is squeezing blackheads. Every time you run the risk of infection... so why not do it the smart way, with a gentle friction wash that

Undulating Line Hair News For Fall; 'Boy' Look Passe

"Complete change is the order of the day," says a noted hair stylist, Michel, who has just returned from viewing the Paris and Rome collections.

"The entire mood of fashion in fabrics, fashion in clothes, and fashion in hairstyles is completely different," he says. "The gamine, darling of yesterday, has become as old hat as the flapper. Elegance, distinguished, and restrained is the keynote for fall."

An undulating line will be very avant-garde this season, he reports. Short, chopped hair, relic from the days of the Poole, the Italian, the Gamin, and all the other cropped hair-dos, will now be completely unfashionable. The Edwardian Dandy is with us now, and the completely feminine, soignée, undulating line will be the smart look in hair for fall and winter.

"It's time to grow your hair," says Michel. "Not long, but to a smooth and even length which will end in a sweetly curled, charmingly feminine back hair. Length will be no longer than the tip of your ears, the top of your collar at back. But to achieve the mobility, free flowing and graceful, necessary for fall, hair must be of one length."
