use. Twelve of the lots are owned by the county and 11 by private owners.

Cmdr. William A. Mason declared that the county was trying to bring down the value of the lots so that they could buy them.

The county recently set up a fireguard station on the beach near the Hollywood Riviera Club.

A second hearing was set for Dec. 15 on a proposed zone change on seven parcels of land between 190th and 203rd Sts., between Hawthorne and the city limits. The Dominguez Estate Co. proposed the changes.

Application Studied

The application of R. D. McEwen for a real estate office at the corner of Sepulveda and Cabrillo was referred to committee and set for hearing on Dec. 15. A committee was also appointed to study the application of the Waldo Trailer Park for use of four lots on 220th St., between Western and Abalone Aves., with hearing set for Dec. 15.

Action on Tract 20944

southwest of 166th and Arlington, bounded by the Dominguez Channel, was postponed two weeks, until a drainage map is prepared. Containing 56 lots, the tract is proposed by the Grand Construction Co.

Tract 80773, containing 50 lots, was referred back to the Engineering Department for further study. Located at 230th and Ocean Ave., it is proposed by Harry Klissel. Further study will be made of drainage and street problems.

Approval Given

Tract 17856, containing seven lots located southeast of 176th and Crenshaw was tentatively approved, pending correct drainage, grade size, and fence requirements.

The commission also discussed tentative ordinances for off-street parking for present and future commercial developments, and for street lighting ordinances for subdivisions.

Powell told the commission that present ordinances make it possible to build two houses on lots with more than 7500 square feet.

Church signs not exceeding 18 by 24 inches may be placed on streets to direct people, the commission decided.

Each church may put up four directional signs on main streets.

Area Studied
A study is being made of the area between Sepulveda and the city limits, and between Walnut and Crenshaw, Powell said, to determine where streets should be.

Tract 18180, west of Arlington, originally submitted by James S. Dresser, was reapproved by the commission. It is now owned by the R. G. Co.

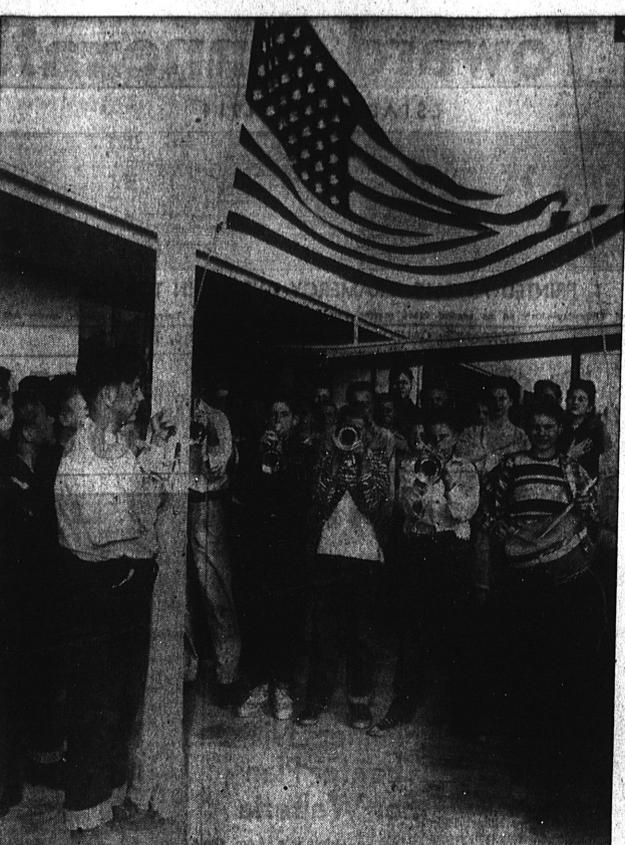

The commission also decided that property owners would be allowed to build fences along property set aside for a walkway between Dralilo Dr. and Seaside Park, since no walk will be built for the present.

New Power Tool Shown

Center of attraction for shoppers at the huge United Hardware and Supply Co., at 621 S. Hawthorne Ave. in Hawthorne, is the revolutionary new Shopsmith Mark IV, according to Store Executive Alan Katz.

"This is more than a new model of the famous multi-purpose machine which changed power tool woodworking," Katz reports. "It is a completely new concept creating whole new dimensions in modern do-it-yourself living."

The new power tool is the result of more than three years of engineering study, and sums up the experience of nearly 200,000 Shopsmith owners.

Burning Hours for County Area Changed Saturday

Effective date for the change in trash burning hours in the unincorporated county areas, like Carson, Lomita, Rolling Hills, and the Victor tract, was Saturday, Dec. 4. County Fire Chief K. E. Klinger reminded residents today.

On that date, the hours of 4 to 7 p.m. of any-day became legal hours for the burning of trash in residential incinerators and open fires within residential dooryard premises.

Klinger emphasized the fact that although this is a cooperative effort on the part of the Fire Department to assist in the reduction of smog, every person must remember that burning in the afternoon hours will increase the fire hazard situation due to probable increase in wind.

No change in the burning hours for those residents within the Torrance city limits has been made, it was stated. "Torrance residents still can burn only between the hours of 6 and 10 a.m."

Chief Klinger said the new burning laws give the fire department the right to suspend burning at any time a high fire hazard condition exists. This information, when necessary, will be given out through the newspapers, television and radio.

NTCIA Plans Money Drive For Hospital

A door-to-door solicitation campaign for the Torrance Memorial Hospital will be conducted by North Torrance Civic Assn. committee headed by Mrs. Herna Tillen, president. Muri Reeves announced Wednesday night.

In appointing the committee, Reeves pointed out that $100 donations would entitle the donor to hospital membership rights for life, while a $5 donation would furnish an annual membership.

The hospital will be asked to give the NTCIA president a permanent vote on hospital policy in return for a $100 contribution, Reeves said.

Named to the committee were Milton Hunter, Kermit Weeks, Al Kirkpatrick, David Hodges, Clinton Beeson, Muri Reeves, Mrs. Charles Leichtweis, Mrs. Glen Runstead, Mrs. John G. L. Crain, Mrs. Mildred Lutz, and Mrs. Norma Prange.

Cadet Lt. Dale Wendt Records Highest Brown Academy Grades

By SONNIE TOMCHAK FR. 5-6662

Dale Wendt, of 4806 Green Meadows Ave., who is a lieutenant at Brown Military Academy, was home over the Thanksgiving weekend. During the vacation he held a party attended by four of his classmates and their dates, who all reside in Torrance. Dale holds an enviable record at the academy, where he has the highest scholastic average in the school including the junior college group. Dale is a junior this year and is very modest about his grades.

On last Friday and Saturday nights Mrs. Charles Hackbusch, of 45-1/2 Pacific Coast Hwy., appeared in a one-act play presented by the Players Circle. Mr. Hackbusch played the part of Jeff, a farmer in the comedy "Quiet, Please," written by Howard Baerman. The play was one of three presented by the group last week-end at the Pier Ave. School. Mrs. Hackbusch, who is also interested in dramatics, did publicity work for the play.

Robbery

game. Then one man produced a shotgun and the other looted my pockets. They took $157 and shoved the billfold back into my jacket," Ashton quoted Roberts as saying.

The third man apparently was unawares that a stickup was to take place, and hot-footed it out the door, the detective said.

Backing out the door, the two suspects were spotted by a construction foreman, Darrell Cune, and another worker, Henry Sage. They watched as the two men got into a late model Buick sedan, and sped east on 188th St. it was reported.

License Spotted
Police put out an immediate bulletin for a car with an Alaska license plate while Ashton radioed for the address of the party owning the auto.

Seconds later, and before the broadcast of the robbery was on the air, a sheriff's car halted the sedan on Western Ave. near El Segundo Blvd. for running a stop sign.

Deputies, checking out the auto, noticed another set of plates, California license tags, in the auto, and noted the number. They cited the driver and let him go.

When they received a radio message of the stick-up minutes later, they notified Ashton, who was bound for the Los Angeles address given him. The California plates were listed at another address, and the Torrance detective headed there.

Ashton said he found Young in bed at the Los Angeles address. He denied any connection with the robbery.

Roberts, however, identified the man as one of the bandits, Ashton said. Young told that he had been in a gambling game with Roberts, and his payroll check had been lost to a couple of partners.
