Hershey Takes Double Role In ACCENT: Theatre! Play

How can one man handle a dual role in a play that calls for only two characters in the first place?

The answer to that riddle isn't easy, as Von Hershey, local actor and head of drama at Torrance High School, has discovered.

As director and leading man in "The Fourposter," Broadway hit comedy being produced next Friday, Saturday and Sunday by ACCENT Theatre! at the Torrance Woman's Club, Hershey has certainly been seeing double.

Co-star Patricia Cantle has been equally busy carrying the weight of a role which has challenged such veteran comedians as Lill Palmer and Jessava Tandy. Rex Harrison and Hume Cronyn have appeared in the part being taken by Hershey.

VON HERSHEY . . . In Double Role

Heads THIS Drama

Last seen in the starring role of Palos Verdes Players' production of "Autumn Garden," Hershey is a veteran of the UCLA Department of Theatre Arts and heads drama activities at Torrance High.

During the past term, he directed the annual variety show, the senior play, and the Thespian original one-act play festival. In his first local appearance, he walked off with honors as the gangster-lover in ACCENT: Theatre's debut presentation, "Night of January 16th."

Hershey's directional chores in "The Fourposter" are his first with an adult group.

Veteran Actress

Mrs. Cantle, the former Patricia Whitehead, studied drama at Los Angeles City College. She was head of the division of interpretive reading for the Harbor Festival of Arts and was a member of the San Pedro Theatre Guild.

With her husband, Ed Cantle, she was active in the Clapham Players, of London, England. With the coming of the war, which interrupted her theatrical studies and turned her head to more "utilitarian" endeavor,

Mrs. Whipple Wins 'Queen' Title on TV

Dreams came true for Mrs. Pat Whipple, of 3312 W. 180th St., last week, when she was named "Queen for a Day" on the television program.

Mrs. Whipple was chosen "queen" by the audience after she had wished for foam rubber furniture for her home, because her three-year-old daughter, Marion Lee, is allergic to the overstuffed variety.

Douglas Heads Chest Industries Division

Donald W. Douglas Jr. has again accepted the post of countywide industries division chairman for the Community Chest. It was announced this week Douglas, who is director and vice president for military sales of Douglas Aircraft Co., will head that part of the appeal that seeks contributions from employees of several large aircraft and steel companies in Southern California.

More than 150 allergy tests showed that Marion Lee is allergic to overstuffed furniture, Mrs. Whipple said. Although the little girl's bedroom had the foam rubber furnishings, they could not buy any for the living room.

After winning the contest, Mrs. Whipple also received a number of other home furnishings and appliances in addition to the foam rubber furniture. Afterward, she and her husband, Albert, a switchman for the Pacific Electric, made a royal tour of several night clubs.
