

City May Lose 174th Street

A suggestion of the Regional Planning Commission is carried out, 174th St. in Torrance may be no more. That was the basis for an illustrated story Monday morning in the HERALD which was distributed to the paid subscribers of this newspaper.

According to the matter which came before the Torrance Planning Commission Wednesday evening, the street may be renamed Artega Blvd.—in fact it has been renamed Artesia clear up to Torrance's eastern boundary at Gramercy Place. The matter is being forwarded to the City Council for consideration, the HERALD story reported.

In another exclusive Monday story reported by the HERALD, Mayor Albert Isen, Civil Defense official George Powell, and Capt. D. J. Horlander found themselves in "enemy" territory during field training of the 40th Division at Camp Roberts last week end. Captured by "enemy" forces, the trio had a few anxious moments until their identities were explained to the satisfaction of the captors.

Appointment of former Torrance Chamber Manager Dale Isenberg to a similar position in Hermosa Beach also was reported exclusively in the Monday HERALD. Isenberg lives at 5038 Pacific Constr. Hwy., Torrance. "Torrance taxpayers were in for another bit of heartening news over the week end as the Metropolitan Water District announced a 2-cent reduction in tax rates for the new year," was the way another HERALD exclusive ran.

Polio, which has been much in the news across the nation during the summer months, hit a Torrance youngster last week. Monday's HERALD reported the hospitalization of 5-year-old Lawrence Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palmer, of 223 Paseo de Granada. The illness of Lawrence climaxed a series of family misfortunes, the story reported.

A roundup of the city's new school building programs concluded that a new high school and two elementary schools WOULD be open next month. Set to open despite delays is the North High School, and the Steele and Newton Elementary Schools. Expected enrollments at the three schools also was given.

A zone change for a new shopping center which will include a market, drug store, medical building, bank, and 1000-car parking area, was approved by the Planning Commission last week according to Monday's HERALD. The center is planned for Crenshaw Blvd. and Redondo Beach Blvd.

A call for Torrance High School grid hopefuls was put out by coaches Jack Miller and Don Porter. Porter, who will be head coach at THIS fall, asked Varsity, and Tartarbes to turn out Sept. 1 and 2 respectively. A complete schedule of games for two teams was published Monday.

A pitch-by-pitch report on the game which saw the Fire Department's "B" team beat the American Legion 2-1 to win the city's Slo-Pitch league was published in Monday's sport section here. For the trout fishermen, Sports Editor Jim Grunpaker included a report of last week's trout planting in Southland waters in the section.

HERALD columnist John Morley, now in Athens Greece, gave a rundown on the strange items he encountered throughout Europe on his tour. For instance, did you know that revolving doors in England turn opposite to ours? Morley told us so Monday. He also told us that all of Norway's chiefs of police must be lawyers.

The city's 8171 PTA members were the subject of a "first-of-its-year" story by HERALD Social Editor Edna Cloyd Monday.

Hatred of Regimentation Leads German Baron to America

A hatred of regimentation, and a deep dislike for his goose-stepping days in the German Army prompted E. E. Wisman, 2317 Via Rivera, Palms Verdes Estates, inspection foreman of the assembly and installation departments at the Torrance facility of the El Segundo Division of the Douglas Aircraft Co., to leave the land of his birth 34 years ago. He is returning Aug. 25 to visit relatives whom he hasn't seen since 1921.

A Baron in Germany, Wisman is glad to be just plain Mister over here. But there are ties there which he still holds day. Also reported was comes-as-you-are breakfast by the Junior Women's Club and the Catholic Daughters. Other top stories of the week end social whirl were reported Monday.

With all of these stories—most of them published nowhere else—and with the three pages of classified advertising plus several additional pages of display advertising of Torrance merchants, the readers of the Monday HERALD are getting a real bargain.

Ernie was persistent so the banker called a friend and Wisman went to work in a large orange grove. He came to work for Douglas Aug. 7, 1933. He is proud of the fact that for his first 10 years he was neither late nor absent a single day.

"I liked them as a result of some American students I met after the war," Wisman said. "I liked them. They were real ambassadors for the United States. They often told me, 'Ernie, don't stay here. You'll go places in America.'" Wisman decided to come. His father a philosophic man, gave him enough money to provide for emergencies, but, more important, some parting words of wisdom. "Choose your companions carefully," he said. "If you need help, go to a banker. He'll never give you wrong advice."

Arriving in New York, he headed straight for California because he had admired the travel pictures of the state's snow-capped peaks in winter, and sun-filled valleys. Wisman spoke three languages but English was not one of them. He recalled vividly during his first months what one of his professors had said during his school days.

"You'll be sorry, Ernie, if you don't learn to speak English," Visited the Banker Wisman settled down in Santa Ana. Heading his father's advice, he went to the first bank he saw and asked to see the manager. He explained, through an interpreter, that he wanted to find a job.

"Mr. Wisman," the surprised banker said, "this isn't an employment agency."

SWIM RULES PRESENTED BY SHERIFF

Due to an unprecedented wave of accidental drownings in Los Angeles County, Sheriff E. W. Biscailuz Monday issued an urgent appeal to all parents and property owners for an intensive campaign to guard the life and wellbeing of children. These simple rules, he said, would save lives.

1. Never leave children unattended in or beside a pool even for a short time. Thirty unguarded seconds may take a life.
2. Fence in your pool with a good small mesh wire fence and see that all gates are self-closing and self-locking which will eliminate the gate accidentally left unhooked.
3. Never swim alone. You might be seized with a cramp and need assistance.
4. Do not swim in reservoirs, debris basins, or abandoned gravel pits. Underwater rocks or other obstacles may cause serious injury or death and there are no lifeguards or attendants to assist you should you need help.
5. Call your nearest Sheriff's station if you discover any abandoned, unfenced oil sump or excavation. Also any abandoned, uncovered, electrical, water well, cistern or cesspool.

"The above rules," Sheriff Biscailuz said, "will go a long way toward eliminating these needless tragedies and will help to keep our children happy, healthy and safe."

E. E. WISSMAN ... Leaving for Germany

A book he wrote, "Aircraft Inspection," published by McGraw-Hill, sold 40,000 copies and was published all over the world. Because of the book's success, his name appeared in "Who's Who in America," and "Who's Who in Commerce and Industry."

Wisman and his wife plan to visit France, Switzerland, and Italy as well as Germany. After 31 days he'll return to work at Torrance.

King Bill In Dope War Becomes Law

Legislation authored by Congressman Cecil R. King to aid in cracking down on dope peddlers throughout the United States became Public Law No. 362 this week and received the praise of Harry J. Ainslinger, Commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, and other law enforcement officers.

The new law provides Federal authority to subpoena witnesses and require the production of records with respect to the enforcement of the laws of the United States relating to narcotic drugs and marihuana.

Bill Signed Congressman King's bill received the support of the Departments of Treasury and Justice and passed both the House and Senate in the closing days of the recent session. President Eisenhower signed the measure earlier this month.

"This law is an important aid to law enforcement officers in eliminating the illicit drug peddlers who foment the spread of drug addiction throughout the country," stated Commissioner Harry J. Ainslinger.

The veteran legislator is presently working on new measures aimed at curbing narcotics traffic.
