

City Has Area's Greatest Number of People Per Home

The average home in Torrance has more mouths to feed and more feet under the dinner table than the average home in any of the other six South Bay cities, according to figures released by the Regional Planning Commission.

According to the estimate of the commission, Torrance has about 3.4 residents per house in the city. This figure is based on the commission's estimate that there were 78,042 persons living in 23,321 houses in Torrance. The estimate was made before the recent census, which placed the city's population at 82,238.

Average Rises
The figures also indicated that the average number of members of the household has risen from 2.75 in 1950, when the city had the second fewest number per house of any of the seven cities in this area.

This doesn't necessarily mean that Torrance residents are more crowded than residents in the other cities or in this city six years ago, since the figures indicate nothing about the size of the houses. The building boom has brought many young couples with children to new homes here, many of which have three and four bedrooms.

Runnersup in the number of persons per house were Gardena, with 3.25; Redondo Beach, 3.2; Hawthorne, 3.2; Manhattan Beach, 3.1; Inglewood, 2.8; and Hermosa Beach, 2.5.

Must Settle Loan
Second, while this relieves the GI from obligation to the Veterans' Administration, it does not relieve him from liability to the lender if the new owner should default. A separate release must be negotiated with the bank, insurance company, or other lender.

In view of all this, the ideal way to sell a home encumbered with a GI loan is still to pay off the loan and have the new purchaser obtain his own financing.

Some Get Loans
Third, the veteran cannot expect to go out and buy another house with another GI loan. Except in a few cases, one such loan is all he is entitled to.

The exceptions may include taking over of the property by the government for public use, destruction by fire, flood or tornado, or a move made necessary by health or employment reasons.

Persons seeking more information about home loan problems are invited to see Mrs. Dill at 1622 Gramercy Ave.

Refunds on Local Gas Bill Ordered
The California Public Utilities Commission this week ordered a refund of $1,987,811 to customers of Southern California Gas Co.

The refund results from a settlement of an El Paso Natural Gas Co. rate case pending before the Federal Power Commission since 1953. The El Paso Co. supplies out-of-state gas to the local company for resale.

Divided among the local company's 1,500,000 customers, the refund will amount to an average of 70 cents for residential and commercial consumers, it was estimated, and will be credited on bills rendered on or after Dec. 3.

The California Commission, in authorizing Southern California Gas to increase its rates in 1952 to offset higher prices it was forced to pay for supplies from the El Paso Co., said that any settlement approved by the FPC must be refunded to the local company's customers, with Southern California Gas Co. bearing all costs of making refunds.

30 Sites for Palos Verdes Schools Seen
A study of school site requirements of the Palos Verdes School District, showing 27 elementary and three high schools, has received the approval of the Regional Planning Commission.

Based on an ultimate estimated population of nearly 60,000 persons, the report was prepared by the staff of the Regional Planning Commission at the request of Dr. N. D. Myers, superintendent of the Palos Verdes School District.

A total of 27 elementary school sites was recommended, including 20 for kindergarten through sixth grade and seven for kindergarten through eighth grade. Three high school sites also were suggested for the area.

Pair Steal Bicycle of Boy, 7, Through Ruse
Two older boys stole seven-year-old Patrick Moody's bike after one of them distracted his attention, Mrs. Dorothy Moody, 1823 W. 261st St., told sheriff's deputies Tuesday.

Mrs. Moody said two high-school-age youngsters riding one bike came up to her son and started talking to him. While one of the boys talked to young Patrick, the other one rode away on his bicycle. Then the other boy rode away, she said. The bicycle was valued at $25.

Cancer Film Showing Set Here Dec. 3
The American Cancer Society film, "146,000 Could Live," will be shown at several places in this area, according to Allan K. Jonas, the society's education chairman for this area.

He pointed out that the film is a documentary film describing the seven danger signals of the disease.

It will be shown in the Torrance Beach Armory, 552 36th St., El Prado, at 8 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 3.

In this area, it will be shown at the Redondo Beach Eagle's Hall, 128 S. Catalina Ave., Redondo Beach on Thursday, Nov. 29; at the Manhattan Beach Armory, 552 36th St., Manhattan Beach on Friday, Nov. 30; and at St. John's Lutheran Church, 1204 W. 163rd St., Gardena, on Wednesday, Dec. 4. All showings are at 8 p.m.

McCulloch Motors Corp. employees are being shown the movie during their lunch hour.

"The film carries an underlying positive message," Jonas said. "Lives are being saved today that yesterday might have been doomed. No one can afford to miss seeing this film, for the information it contains is of prime importance in fighting cancer and saving lives."
