Antique Lovers, Playgoers Should Like New Productions

Antique lovers as well as theatre enthusiasts should enjoy Hampton Players' new show, "The Rainmaker," which opened last week end at 8:30, for a four week run at the Players' theatre, 129 South Pacific, Redondo Beach.

Some furnishings and props for the midwest rural setting date back to the 1900's and earlier. Albert Julian of Palos Verdes Stables unearthed many rare pieces that had been more or less stored in the hay for years. Thanks to him, the Curry's ranch house breathes authenticity.

Old Records
A lively note is played by a genuine 1889 music box complete with records, and "The Glow Worm" sets the scene for one gay interlude. A hand-some original Duncan Phyfe sofa, an oversized old wood rocker, and a choice leather covered day bed add a touch of grandeur to an otherwise plain farmhouse.

Stranger Enters
Saddles, boots, and guns complete the atmosphere, and the audience is sure to feel the dry heat of this arid land before the Rainmaker brings hope for a change in the weather.

A stranger comes into the lives of the Curry family promising rain as a "business" transaction; then, in a most unbusinesslike way transforms and inspires the folks he deals with so that their hopes be- come reality.

The production, in horse-show staging, is guided by Director Thelma Ledwidge and Assistant Director Dorothy Tunis. It will run for four week ends. Tickets are available at the door.

Wrong Ginter Identified in Police Case

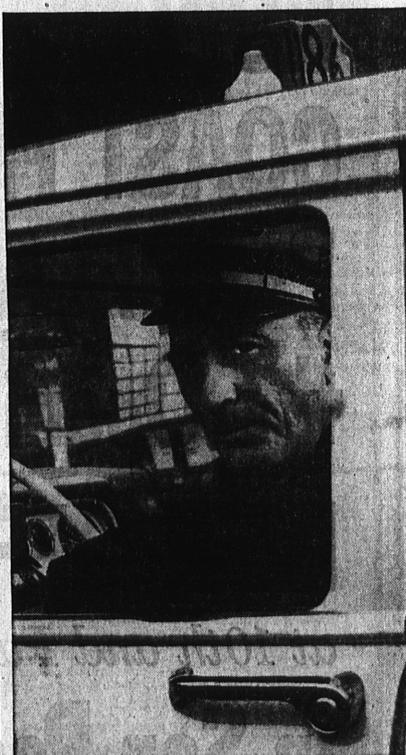

One of the men charged with five counts of rape and five counts of sex perversion in connection with the kidnaping of a Long Beach housewife was incorrectly identified as James Ginter in Thursday's HERALD.

Charges have been filed against John Marvin Ginter, 20, 25351 Oak Ave.; Thomas A. Tankersley, 2214 W. 250th St., and two juveniles. Ginter was released from an Oklahoma reformatory four days earlier after serving 18 months for violating the Dyer Act.

The quartet allegedly abducted the woman in Long Beach and took her to Tankersley's home in Lomita, where the offenses are said to have occurred.
