Craft Experts Teaching Kids to Turn Scraps Into Works of Art

The Torrance Recreation Dept. is offering an interesting activity in conjunction with its summer recreation program. This activity is in working with crafts under the competent guidance of Don Wright, crafts specialist. The crafts program, held at all parks and playgrounds, is varied and unique. Just to list a few of the items that are being made would include: paper jewelry made out of pipe cleaners and magazine strips; ash trays made from wire, sock toes, and sand; wax paper lamination which is creating floral patterns through the use of wax paper, glue, leaves and string; and paper sculpture derived from corrugated and construction paper. Other items that will be worked on include string painting, potato and block painting stencil work, lanyards and many others.

Wright, the instructor, has a background of preparation well suited for this phase of recreation. He was an art major at the University of Southern California and currently possess a special secondary credential in art which permits him to instruct in this field in public high schools. Don has participated in local art shows sponsored by the Torrance Art Group and has won honors in prints and sculpture. He is a member of the professional art fraternity, Kappa Pi.

There are several good reasons for developing this recreational facility: to encourage interest and participation in the summer recreation program; to encourage creative expression; to broaden the child's interest and to develop an appreciation of arts and crafts; to help the child gain confidence in problem-solving situations; to give the child an opportunity to participate in meaningful learning situations; and to help the child to develop and understand the concept of freedom with responsibility.

This, practically applied, means freedom of choice within the limits of the arts and crafts program that is offered to him.

Not only is there an opportunity for youngsters to engage in an activity that is fun and interesting, but at the same time to be developing in the skills involving use of art materials. In addition, this is a chance to express the creative ability that these children are endowed with.

For further information contact your local park or playground director.
