... Ann Landers

make some effort to see and be seen, nothing very interesting is going to happen to you, Toots.

Dear Ann: I'm a divorced woman, 39, and went with a very nice fellow named Orrin for almost two years. He suddenly broke off with me saying I should go with other fellows until he could "see his way clear." He said he'd still like to take me out every Sunday.

I like Orrin so much I've refused other dates during the week hoping he'll ask me out more, but he doesn't. He says he enjoys my company, but right now once a week is the limit.

Every Sunday he picks me up and we go to his mother's house. I clean her place from top to bottom, finish whatever ironing is in the basket and cook dinner for the three of us. After that Orrin takes me to a movie.

My sisters say I'm crazy to go on like this, but I think I continue to be sweet and kind to him and his mother, he'll see my virtuous side and I will win him someday. What do you think?—WILLING TO WAIT

Dear Willing: You'll drop dead doing his mother's housework before he marries you. This is your idea of a Sunday date?

Start accepting some of those other offers and quite being a fool. Orrin isn't looking for a wife. All he wants is a cleaning lady.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)
