Boy Students Presented by Mrs. Lumsden

An All Boys Recital was recently presented at the Woman's Club, Redondo Beach, by pupils of Gertrude Lumsden, South Bay teacher of piano and voice. Performing with fine technical finish, these young students also displayed a good grasp of the emotional and intellectual content of the compositions presented.

Those playing piano solos were: Christopher Edman, William Steinwachs, Phillip Carney, Craig Robinson, Kenneth Hill, Richard Applegate, Bruce Stackhouse, Sidney Sparks and Larry Edman. In addition to his elections at the piano, Bruce Stackhouse (who is studying both voice and piano) sang a novelty song in pleasing style. A fine piano duet served to introduce the newly formed brother team of Larry and Christopher Edman. The solos by Richard Applegate were performed in typical western style.

Vocal selections were sung effectively by Stephen Stackhouse, boy soprano, and Larry Stackhouse, basso-baritone.

An All Boys Recital seems to carry with it an atmosphere less formal than the usual recital, as was typified by the novel and amusing ending to the program when the 11 young men came on stage together and rendered in lively fashion the Liechtensteiner Polka, sung in the authentic German version.
