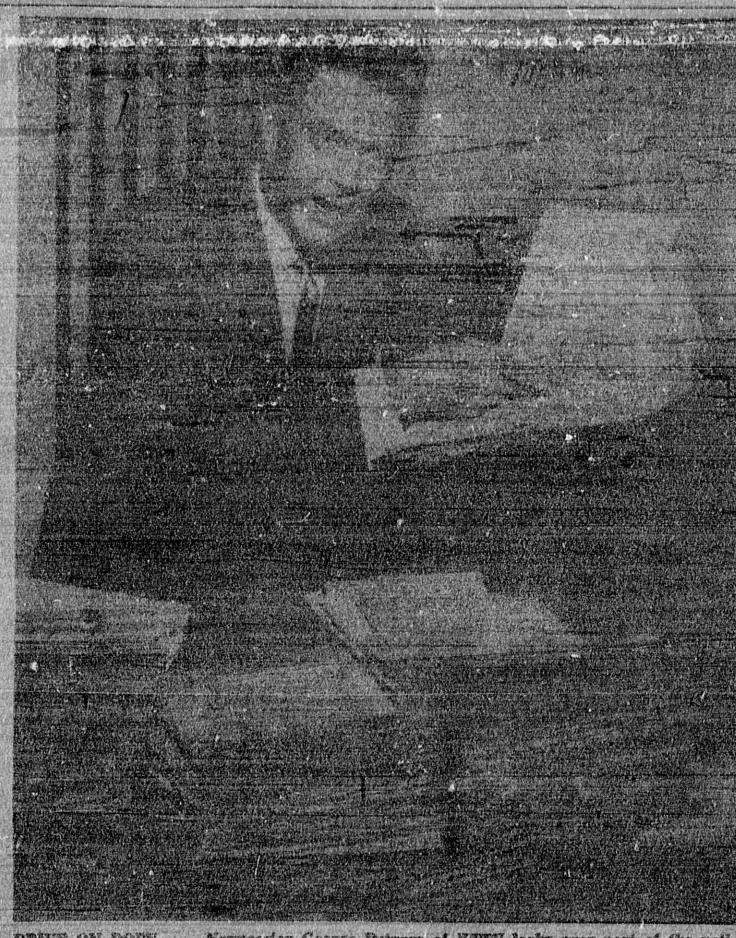
SOME READING

An average college student reads 24.8 books a year, according to a study made in Ohio State.



DRIVE ON DOPE . . . Newscaster George Putnam of KTTV looks over part of the petitions now bearing 75,000 signatures which have been obtained by the Torrance, Redondo and Gardena Elks lodges in their drive to bring about stricter penalties for dope sellers. Torrance Chairman Joe Yates, past exalted ruler of the local lodge, reported yesterday that the drive was going on a statewide basis.

Roger Roelle, chairman of the narcotics committee of the Los Angeles Grand Jury told the overflow crowd that a sentence of 30 years in prison for any convicted seller of narcotics was a high price to pay for dope profits. But, he agrees with the proposal.

Charge High Rent

"Make the 'rent' so high the narcotic seller can't afford to live in his filthy house," Roelle said.

His sentiments were echoed by Newscaster George Putnam, Capt. R. B. Brooks, and official close to the narcotics picture.

The campaign is already spreading to San Diego, Inglewood, Oceanside, and other California communities who have asked to share the task of arousing state officials to the pressing problem.

"With the help of all Torrance residents, we can go a long way toward winning our 'Stamp Out the Killer' campaign," Chairman Yates said.

"What we ask is very simple," he added.

"We just want your signature."
