

YOUR PROBLEMS

by Ann Landers

"To Be Respected, Behave Yourself"

Dear Ann: I'm a nice, decent girl 14-years of age. Last evening my girl friend and I were walking around town and a car drove up alongside us. It was a couple of fellows from school. We knew them slightly, but had never been out with them. Both boys are good-looking, popular and well thought of. Any girl would consider herself lucky to have a date with either of them.

We got into the car and rode around for awhile. Then we parked in an out-of-the-way place and started to talk. My fellow, Barry, kissed me several times and I guess you might say we necked for about an hour and a half.

When Barry took me home he just let me out of the car. He didn't even walk me to the door. I feel cheap and now I'm afraid he doesn't respect me and that he'll never ask me for a real date. I could kick myself for the way I acted.

How can I get across to Barry that I'm really a nice girl? — HATE MYSELF

Dear Hate Yourself: The best way to be respected is to behave yourself. TELLING a fellow you're decent and respectable won't do it — not when you permit yourself to be picked up and then wind up necking on a lonesome road.

This experience shouldn't be a total loss if you learn from it. You've probably muddied the waters for keeps with Barry, but you'll have other opportunities to behave like a lady. Just make sure you do.

Dear Ann: My wife's sister and her husband are both alcoholics. They live next door with their three children who are under eight years of age.

Every night they leave the kids alone while they go from joint to another. The little ones often come to our house, tell us that daddy and mamma are gone and that they're hungry. We feed them and put them in our extra room for the night. Those kids have been left with measles and flu and if we didn't watch after them Lord knows what would happen.

We have three children of our own, but both my wife and I would be happy to take these kids if we could get legal custody. Please tell us how to go about it. — D.F.

Dear D.F.: The first step is to write a sworn statement against the parents listing the reasons you feel they are unfit parents. With this statement express desire for custody. Contact the juvenile authorities, present the statement and be prepared to stand by it in court, if necessary.

Perhaps if this pair loses the children it may shake them up enough so that they'll seek help for themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: What is there about a southern accent that simply slays the men? A woman moved up here from New Orleans and every guy in the office hangs around her because she "talks so ling."

We're getting fed up on her honey-dripping helplessness. Please suggest in your column that the southerners learn to speak English. They sound uneducated. — RED WHITE AND BLUE YANKIES

Dear Red White and Blue: You sound green to me — with envy, that is. Men (especially northern) love a southern accent because it's soft and feminine. Personally, I like it.

Dear Ann: What can be done about people who crane their necks and sit too close on trains and buses because they want to look at the paper you are reading? — SQUASHED

Dear Squashed: Don't be a meanie. Pull out a section of the paper and hand it over.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Republican Women To Hear World Traveler

South Bay Club of Federated Republican Women will hear Ruth Baus, world traveler and authoress, discuss the peoples and politics of East Africa at the Club's noon luncheon meeting on Thursday, Aug. 11, at the Fish Shanty, 4020 Pacific Coast Hwy., Waverly. Color movies on the Union of South Africa, Kruger Park, Victoria Falls, Bantuland, The Federation of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Treetops Hotel in Kenya, will be shown.

Ruth Baus has made two round-the-world trips and has visited over forty-five countries, some many times. The mileage covered in the course of these expeditions equals four times the circumference of the world. The speaker published a book "Who's Running This Expedition", based on a dugout journey down the Coco River in the northern disputed boundary area of Nicaragua in Central America. Ruth Baus is an alumna of UCLA. When not traveling, she resides in the Sunset Strip area. She is a member of the Hollywood Hill-toppers Republican Women's Club and is devoting her time and energies this year to the campaign for Richard Nixon.

Mrs. Mayme Thomas of Redondo Beach, an Honorary Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms at the Republican National Convention in Chicago, will be invited to give some highlights and her impressions of the Convention.
