EAKTAY AHN
Plans Rehearsal

Ahn to Meet With Symphony Next Monday

The world-famous composer-conductor, Eakay Ahn, will rehearse the Civic symphony orchestra for the first time Monday evening in Redondo High School Music Hall. This is in preparation for the Symphony concert to be given Sunday evening Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the school. The orchestra and his concert has the approval and support of the board of supervisors of Los Angeles County, through Supervisor Burton W. Chace and the Music Commission, as well as the local support of our music-minded citizens who serve on the orchestra board and as association members. It will be also supported by the Musician's Union who rank the South Bay and Torrance Symphony very high among the local orchestras, proving their interest by aiding it through the Performance Fund of the Recording Industries.

AHN WILL rehearse the tone poem "Death and Transfiguration" by Richard Strauss, in which, according to I. Koldin, "music attains its highest function — to convey an emotion not expressible in words." To rehearse this under Ahn will be a privilege, for he was selected by the composer himself to assist him during the memorable Strauss Festivals in Vienna a few years ago.

AHN WILL also conduct his own Symphonie Fantasia "Korea" and the accompaniment to the Beethoven First Piano Concerto with soloist Harold Cone of New York, who was recently soloist with the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Civic Symphony board and Director Elyse Aehle feel that this is such a valuable opportunity to play under such a master that they have decided not to keep it for themselves alone but will make it available to all singers and instrumentalists of this community who wish to play and who can show the necessary ability.

Those interested may call FR 5-2744. This will be only for the concert and will not mean they are accepted as regular members of the Civic Symphony Orchestra.

Great Western Backs Chest Fund Campaign

Great Western Savings and Loan Assn. generously backed the Community Chest appeal early this week with a substantial $8000 corporate contribution. This donation did not include the individual employee contributions that are being collected this week in an all-out drive for the charity. Emil J. Seliga, executive vice president of Great Western Savings, in presenting the donation to Fred A. McCantles, Chest volunteer and executive of the Southern California Gas Company, stated that "Great Western is pleased to make a donation to such a worthwhile cause, one which is so important to the people of the Los Angeles area where all of us live and work." The donation, from all seven branches of Great Western, will go to the 170 health, welfare and youth services included in the Los Angeles Area Community Chest.
