"I'd like to say a word for the younger generation"

What do you see when you watch America grow? ■ You see that an American baby is born every eight seconds... 11,000 every day... 4,000,000 a year. Soon our population will be over 200 million. That's a growing America. ■ And, as our population grows, our production is growing. We're going to need new homes and new schools and new hospitals and new transportation and new highways. We're going to have them—and countless appliances and conveniences that haven't even been invented yet. ■ America's future is a bright future, a future of promise to youngsters and parents and aunts and uncles and cousins—by the millions. And because U. S. Steel believes in the future and growth of the economy, we have spent over $750 million for modernization and replacements in the past two years alone, and have authorized many millions more for the near—and bright—future.

P.S. Did it take you a minute or so to read this? That means there are eight more Americans on the scene. "Welcome!"
