Tape Recorded Lessons Make Math Much Easier

Second and third graders at Lincoln Elementary School, Torrance, are learning their addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division by a modern, mechanical method.

Students in Mrs. Mary Bromley's class get drill in their math by taking dictation over a record player. To help pupils get the 90 basic arithmetic facts planted in their heads, the tapes can be used until facts are memorized.

This saves the teacher's time in drilling the students while providing different levels of problems for the slower, average, and fast students.

With earphones clamped over their heads, the children hear the problems and have time to write down the answers on the papers. Students
