A Penny for your Thoughts

Everyone likes to dream, so the Pennies photographer asked five shoppers to dream a little this week and answer the question: "What would you consider an ideal vacation if time and money were not limiting factors?"

Their pictures and answers appear below:

June Boucier, 5161 Skylark Dr., Huntington Beach:

"I consider a nice vacation one with a pool in the backyard where I can relax and enjoy myself. I would like to eat special dishes — mind you, no cooking, it would have to be served to me — and just relax and not have to worry."

Mrs. Laura Harned, 3522 Emerald St.:

"There are so many things that one could do. I think I would just travel around the United States. I've lived in Torrance most of my life, so I'd like to see all of my own state of California first, then the rest of the country."

Mrs. G. L. Wade, 815 Kornblum Ave.:

"I would like to go to Mexico City. I have only been just across the border into Mexico, so I'd like to go much farther into the country and learn something about our neighbors while having a good time."

Ann Goldstein, 3516 Garnet St.:

"I think I would consider a trip around the world ideal. I would travel by boat and I would especially like to see England again, since that is where I came from."

Mrs. George E. Finnell, 29832 Halldale Ave.:

"I consider an ideal vacation one where one can just get on a boat and enjoy living for awhile. I think boats are a vacation in themselves. Of course, I would have to go to Europe, especially England, France and Germany."

Cadets Work to Buy Plane With Plane Wash Project

By DARRELL MADDOX Herald Staff Writer

School organizations and church clubs often wash cars to raise money but in Torrance a group of boys are washing airplanes.

They are members of the year-old Torrance Air Explorer Squadron 377-A. Their goal is $1000 for the purchase of a used airplane.

"There's no secret to washing an airplane," says Squadron Senior Crew Chief Lee Larson of 204 Via Colusa.

"It is just about like washing a car except that we have to be a little more careful because the majority of small planes are fabric and if the fabric is old it could easily be punctured."

THE SQUADRON started washing airplanes when school let out for the summer vacation. So far they have washed about 50 airplanes and collected about $300. "We hope to buy our airplane within a year but it depends upon how much money we make with the washing rack," Larson said.

Airport Tower Project Pushed

Construction of the city's new $240,000 airport control tower should be completed by the first of November and in operation in another 90 days, it was reported here this week.

The new tower, financed jointly by the city and by the Federal government, will cost about $140,000 to construct, and will take equipment estimated to cost another $100,000 before it is put into operation, according to representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency, which is supervising the project.

DESIGN OF the tower was done by a Long Beach architectural firm. A San Marino contractor is doing the basic construction on his bid of $115,000.

Financing of the project is being shared by the city and the federal government. The

Their wash rack is at the Torrance Municipal airport where the unit meets the second and fourth Mondays of each month for preflight instruction. "We can wash any plane that can fly into the airport which includes most prop airplanes and Electras," Larson said.

F. G. Sedgwick, advisor, said the youths plan on rebuilding and conditioning their airplane when they buy it. The rebuilding and conditioning will be done under strict supervision of licensed aviation engineer mechanics, he said.

THE YOUTHS are manning their wash rack during summer vacation from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday but when school starts it will be open on weekends and by appointment. Persons interested may contact Larson in the evening at FR 5-9900 or telephone DA 5-4422 during the day.

The squadron was organized about a year ago and includes 12 South High School students.

To qualify for membership youths must be 14 years old and in the ninth grade or 15 years old at any grade level.

MEMBERS HAVE heard talks by Federal Aviation Administration officials, jet aircraft specialists, commercial pilots, airport tower operators, and military aviation experts. In addition, they have participated in flights, glider flights and field trips to aviation industries.

They are planning a field trip to Miramar Naval Air Station near San Diego and a cruise aboard the naval aircraft carrier, USS Lexington.

State Plans For Artesia To Be Viewed

State plans to develop Artesia St. into a full freeway will be studied in depth by a city council committee it was decided Tuesday.

Councilman J. A. Beasley, chairman of the Inter City Highway Committee, asked for the committee study after reporting that his group had discussed the proposal at length at last week's meeting.

Beasley reported that the right-of-way for the proposed freeway had been adopted from Normandie Ave. eastward, and that any suggestions the city wished to make should be considered now.

HE SUGGESTED that the city might seek to eliminate plans for the freeway west of Normandie Ave., substituting the Artesia St. and Del Amo Blvd. expressways as feeders from the Torrance and beach cities areas. Members of the Inter City Highway Committee, including city and community officials of nearby areas, reportedly favored the expressway suggestion.

"Adoption of Del Amo Blvd. as a state feeder route would also save the city about $3 million in development of that street here," City Manager Wade Peebles told the councilmen.

THE COUNCIL also endorsed Beasley's suggestion that the city lend its support to those seeking early completion of the Airport Freeway in the vicinity of Century Blvd.

"This freeway will be a vital part of the Southern California system," Beasley said. "It now

Police broadcast an all points bulletin for the eight suspects.

Detectives said the youths forced the woman into their car in the 1300 block of 225th St. and drove to a deserted area behind 2134 Del Amo Blvd. Five of the youths tore off her clothing and assaulted her.

She told police she tried to get away, but she was again assaulted by all eight of the suspects before she was successful in her attempts to escape.

She fled to a house near-by and residents called police, but the youths escaped in their car.
