by Ann Landers

"Man Is Different From Alley Cat..."

Dear Ann Landers: May a new American ask a question? Why do married couples here pretend that they are faithful to one another when the truth is that they are having love affairs left and right?

In Europe there is no such fakery. Please understand that I am not criticizing what Americans DO. I criticize only the dishonesty. In Europe we are more mature. We put all our cards on the tablecloth.

By nature male animals are polygamists. Why should there be so much guilt about a normal biological drive? How much healthier to show an honest face to the world. No wonder the psychiatrists here are so busy. People are sick from pretending.

I have a beautiful wife and four lovely children. I've had several harmless little affairs d'amour and hope to have more. It is against all laws of nature for a man to be true to one woman so I do not attempt the impossible. Just sign me—ANONYMOUS

Dear Anonymous: No name? Not even an initial? How much healthier if you would show your honest face to the world—and put all your cards on the tablecloth.

The polygamist argument has been dragged around until it's pretty tired. Man is supposed to be different from the alley cat because God has given him the power to reason and the ability to control his biological urges.

Fidelity is one of the major supports of the family in our culture. We know not everyone achieves it, but it's an absurdity to say that marital fidelity is impossible to attain.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a career woman who will be marrying for the first time in October. The man is perfectly grand—an advertising executive who lost his wife five years ago.

The problem is this: I will be moving into his home which is beautiful. But it is furnished in his first wife's taste—which is very different from mine. She went in for ornate furniture, representational art and brocaded draperies. I'm afraid I'll feel overpowered in such surroundings.

Should I suggest redecorating and refurbishing BEFORE we marry? I've been careful not to criticize his home so, of course, he doesn't know how I feel. A close friend tells me if I don't speak up now I may be stuck with the old decor forever.—UNSURE

Dear Unsure: Live in the house for a few months then run a few ideas up to flagpole and see if he salutes.

A gradual transition, perhaps one room at a time, would probably be less jarring.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman I will call Brenda was married to my brother. They had a few separations but were never actually divorced. My brother passed away three months ago. The day after the funeral she went down and changed her name back to Miss...

Last week we were at a party together and when I introduced Brenda as my sister-in-law she took me aside and said, "I am no longer your sister-in-law so please don't introduce me that way."

I say once people are related they are related forever. I will continue to introduce her as my sister-in-law until you say I'm wrong.—STELLA

Dear Stella: Well, you're wrong, so you can stop now. Blood relatives are related forever, but when relatives are acquired through marriage the status is altered when the bond is broken.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How to Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Juniors Join In Dystrophy Fight

"Muscular dystrophy is one of the most tragic diseases known to mankind for the greater number of its sufferers are small children who rarely live beyond their teens!" This statement was made by Ronald Nash, Regional Director, Southern California, for Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, Inc., principal speaker at a luncheon hosted by the Association for Junior clubwomen of the Marina District.

Presiding was Mrs. Charles Hillinger, Marina District president. Honored guests included Mrs. G. Robert Hemstreet, California CFWC Health Chairman, Mrs. Joseph Boylan, Marina District Dean of Chairman and Mrs. Robert Reaney, Marina District Press Chairman. California Junior clubwomen have made MD a two-year project. Last year, 138 clubs spent 10,000 volunteer hours, raising $68,000 to aid the fight against MD. This year they will assist the MDAA program in patient service and public information projects and through participation in the December fund-raising drive to aid MD victims.

In telling of the MDAA program Mr. Nash said: "The MDAA program is dedicated to the conquest of MD, a disease that afflicts nearly a quarter million known persons today." He told of the Association's growth in 10 years from a small group of parents of patients to an organization today having 380 chapters and supporting 100 research projects in the United States and abroad. A new world research center, The Institute for Muscle Disease supported by Association funds conducts intensive research into the mysteries of MD as well as allied neuromuscular diseases and will help speed the discovery of a cure for MD. "In its 10 year history", Nash said, "MDAA has expended 13½ millions for research including the IMD and nearly 8 million dollars for patient services."

Attending were grandmothers, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hayden of Desert Hot Springs; great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Felker and Mrs. C. M. Defouri.

Also, Miss Andrea Felker, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mayfield of Inglewood, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Savage, Corona del Mar; Mr. and Mrs. Pruce Pratte and son, Michael, La Mirada; and Mr. and Mrs. Tib Lizza and Catherine of Manhattan Beach.

Retha N. Wells Fall Bride-elect

Couple Set Nov. 23 For Nuptial Day

Wedding bells will ring on Nov. 23 at the Narbonne Avenue Baptist Church at 8 p.m. for Miss Retha Nina Wells and William Carl Horst.

The announcement of the engagement and wedding plans of her daughter are being made today by Mrs. Emma L. Wells, 1104 W. 209th St., Torrance.

Miss Wells was graduated from the Alton, Ill. High School and the Harbor College. She attended the Missouri Baptist Hospital School of Nursing and for four years was on the nursing staff at Torrance Memorial Hospital. She is now employed by Mrs. Housko and Barnes.

Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Horst, Cordell, Okla., was graduated from the Cordell High School and El Camino College. He is employed by the Dow Chemical Co. here.

INFORMALITY REIGNS... A "hat contest" highlighted the coffee-dessert given by the Las Colinas Garden club at its first gathering of the fall season at the Plush Horse restaurant. Winners were from left, Mmes Eugene Springer, most original; Sydney Greene, prettiest; and Wayne Allen, craziest. Judges were Mmes Arthur Chapman, Flora Chapman and Shirley Sawers. A fashion show of new fall millinery by a Riviera shop was also enjoyed.

Hayden Son Is Baptised

Matthew Arthur Hayden, five weeks old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayden of Del Mar, was baptised in ceremonies at the St. Lawrence Martyr Catholic Church on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 10. Rev. Charles Ara officiated.

Godparents for Matthew, who was born Aug. 3, were Mrs. Bruce Pratte and Tib Lizza. The Haydens have another son, Charles Hayden, III.

Following the baptism, Mrs. Laura Felker, grandmother of the baby, entertained at a buffet dinner at her Palos Verdes home.

Attending were grandmothers, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hayden of Desert Hot Springs; great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Felker and Mrs. C. M. Defouri.
