Two Firms Negotiate

Space Equipment Corp. in Torrance, is negotiating to acquire Fleming Industries, Torrance manufacturer of integrated electronic-explosive systems, Edward J. Horkey, Space Equipment president reported today.

Fleming Industries was founded last November by Walter H. Fleming to produce electronic devices for spacecraft and missiles. Fleming formerly was president of Microloc Corp., Culver City.

"THE electronic capabilities of FI would strongly complement the electromechanical and plastics technical skill now possessed by Space Equipment in the aerospace field," said Horkey.

"It would broaden our corporate base from the standpoint of both research and development and production," he added.

SPACE EQUIPMENT, a California corporation, was organized recently by Horkey to design, develop and manufacture missile, space and industrial products.

In August Space Equipment purchased the Horkey-Moore Plastics Division of Horkey-Moore Associates from Houston-Fearless Corp.
