You Needn't Be a Slave To Treat Him Like a King

"I caught him with another woman, which hurt me, so I beat the hell out of the woman he was running around with. I don't fix him coffee any more because I hate the stuff; I don't cook his favorite dishes any more and when we go to parties I dance with whomever I please.

"I do what I want and he does not stand in my way. He tells everyone how much he loves me. So you're nuts when you say treat a man as a king."

That's one woman's version of how she treats her man. She calls it love and marriage. I call it punishment and a mess. You can't hold a man by force, whether you beat him up or his mistress.

This woman is doing absolutely nothing to hold her marriage together. Sooner or later something has to give.

Of course she blames him for all her troubles. She said he hit her when she was pregnant. Being pregnant is no excuse to behave less as a woman. A sharp tongue (which she obviously has) can drive a man into such a rage he loses all sense of proportion.

Her complaint was that she cooked for him and he didn't appreciate it. I don't know why so many of our American women presume that being a good cook and a clean housekeeper means you're a good wife.

My dears, a man can find women anywhere, even in the employment agencies, who can cook and keep house. They cost him less than a wife in the long run.

Besides, if they don't do a good job he can always unload them without going through emotional upset.

And as to getting pregnant, any animal can get into that condition without half the fuss and effort you American women make out of it.

Because you are a woman, your job is a tougher one. You don't have to be servile to treat him as a king. When someone says of a woman, "She has the bearing of a queen," it doesn't mean she can't act like one, either.

You are what you are. If you behave like a servant, he'll treat you as one. Be like a woman and he'll adore you. Be a shrew and it will be he in the end who will "beat the hell out of" you.

Under new business, the chapter will discuss plans for the Southern California Council's benefit luncheon, "Flame Fantasy," to be held Feb. 3, 1962 at the Beverly Hilton Hotel. The philanthropy to benefit from this event is the Uni-Betic Camp for diabetic Los Angeles Metabolic Clinic, a non-profit organization, conducted for two weeks each summer in the San Bernardino mountains.
