

All El Camino Art Show Scheduled in Washington

Paintings by six El Camino art students are tentatively scheduled to go on display this summer in Washington, D. C., in an all-El Camino College art exhibit.

Chosen from work displayed in the ECC art show last week by art instructors Mildred Walker and Wille Suzuki, the paintings are to be submitted with a short, written statement telling the meaning of the artist's work.

"The show will be sponsored by the American Assn. of Junior Colleges and will include the work of El Camino students exclusively," Miss Walker said.

"Subjects of the works range from total non-objective to abstract representation," Miss Walker added.

Works chosen to be shown in the exhibit were done by James Cappo, Inglewood; Frances Nagai, Gardena; Jack King, Gardena; David Patterson, Inglewood; Adrian Van Suchtelen, Redondo Beach, and Fred Paul, Torrance.

Van Suchtelen, Patterson, and Nagai received awards, contributed by the Gardena Rotary Club, in the El Camino art show for their paintings.
