Four Proposals Attract Major Voter Interest

By Vincent Thomas
 Assemblyman, 68th District
 November 6 is closer than most of us think. That's Election Day—the day every adult Californian is expected to do his part in determining the kind of state, and federal, government we will have. It's a day of decision for all the candidates for public office, whether that office be Congressional, State or local.

What I propose to discuss now is not the contests for office, but rather the many propositions which will confront us as we go to the polls that day. There are 25 of them, too many for me to review here, or even to list by an abbreviated title. Yet all are important, and deserve your study and decision. Most of them, 23, appear on the ballot because they originated in the Legislature, and were passed by it. Two constitutional amendments were initiatives, and more than 420,000 voters agreed that each should go on the ballot.

Seven of the 25 measures would affect local property taxation. Four of these would change existing exemptions from such taxation. Four others relate to state bonds. Three involve regulation of alcoholic beverages, boxing, and osteopathy. Two propose increases in salaries of Legislators. Two others provide for revision of the State Constitution. Seven others would make as many different changes in our laws. From this quick classification, the difficulty of explaining all of them should be evident.

PUBLIC reaction indicates that four of the propositions are attracting attention and stirring up some controversy. Experience says that these will receive the heaviest total vote.

First of these is Proposition 1-A, calling for approval of $270 million in state construction bonds. Proponents say that the similar issue on the June primary ballot was defeated because it was not understood, and that the funds are badly needed for college and university buildings. Opponents claim there is too much "fat" in the measure, and the voters were wise to reject it the first time.

Second is Proposition 4, which would provide local option control over assessment of farm land. Proponents say it is necessary to restore equity to assessment of such land near cities, and to slow down the steady loss of good land to the state's $3 billion a year farm industry. Opponents allege it will only give another tax exemption.

THIRD IS Proposition 23, an initiative to reapportion the State Senate by giving additional Senators to populous counties. Supporters claim it is necessary, in order to give every voter equal representation. Those against it maintain that the present federal system, in which the Assembly is divided according to population, the Senate according to geography, gives the balanced representation which is in the best interests of everyone.

Fourth is Proposition 24, which would provide greater control over subversive activities. Proponents say it is necessary to combat communism. Opponents say it could be used for a "witch-hunt" against innocent people and groups.

All 25 measures are explained, discussed pro and con, and printed in full in the Voter's Pamphlet, sent to every voter before the election. Everyone owes it to himself to study the booklet carefully, then to vote his conviction on every measure. It's his part of legislative action.

Scout Dinner Official Told

Norman H. Michel, 4918 Via El Sereno, has been appointed a sponsor of the 18th Eagle Scout Recognition Dinner at the Los Angeles Biltmore Bowl Wednesday.

Held annually by the Boy Scouts of America Los Angeles Area Council, the special event—scheduled for 6:30 p.m.—will be attended by more than 1,200 government officials, industrialists and Eagle Scouts from more than 100 Southern California communities.

Martin, partner in the architectural firm of Albert C. Martin and Associates, said the dinner will be the highlight of a series of activities being staged in honor of Eagle Scout Day being proclaimed by scores of mayors throughout the area.

Principal dinner speaker will be former X-15 test pilot Scott Crossfield, now an executive with North American Aviation's Space and Information Systems division.

County Awards Sewer Contract

Contract for installation of sanitary sewers and construction of curbs and gutters along a portion of 219th Street, between Grace Avenue and Avalon Boulevard, was awarded to Oswald Bros. Co., of Los Angeles.

Supervisor Burton W. Chace said the firm submitted a low offer of $23,632.12 to complete the project under County Improvement District No. 2156-M in the Torrance - Dominguez area.

Know Your Traffic Laws

Prepared in cooperation with the Traffic Education Bureau of the Torrance Police Department

Failing to dim your headlights while driving on high beam lights is dangerous as well as discourteous. Your headlights while on high beam blinds not only approaching traffic but also traffic in front of your vehicle.

All cars today have a red beam indicator which will tell you at a glance if you are driving on high or low beam but is of no value if the driver fails to check to see what beam he is driving on or ignores the fact he is driving on high beams.

WHEN DRIVING in a metropolitan area it is rarely necessary to drive on high beam lights as most of our main streets have enough street lights to make visibility good. Perhaps the only time high beams would be in order would be in a darkened residential area. The California Vehicle Code requires you to dim your lights within 500 feet of approaching traffic and 200 feet of traffic you may be following.

It is equally important that your headlights be in proper adjustment because if out of adjustment, your lights can blind oncoming traffic even on low beam. Section 24252 of the California Vehicle Code requires you to maintain your lighting equipment in proper working order which includes your headlights.

YOUR HEADLIGHTS are a vital safety device and both right and left lights, high and low beam, should be in proper working order at all times. The lighting equipment on your vehicle serve as your eyes as well as alerting other motorists of your vehicle.
