Slow Driver Citations Increased

Citations for driving too slowly in the left-hand lane of multi-lane highways increased 137 per cent over last year during the first two months of California Highway Patrol emphasis against this violation.

Patrol Commissioner Bradford M. Crittenden said that in August and September, officers issued 3,273 citations for this violation, more than double the 1,380 issued during the same two-month span in 1961.

Enforcement was accelerated following passage of a legislative resolution seeking increased action against drivers who create traffic hazards by cruising in the inside lane at speeds below the normal flow of traffic.

Commissioner Crittenden again reminded motorists that at any speed short of 65 mph, they must drive in the right hand lane whenever they are proceeding slower than the normal flow of traffic, except when passing or preparing to make a left turn.
