A Closer Look

HOLLYWOOD — NBC has entered four programs in the competition at the International Television Festival now being held in Monte Carlo Jan. 9-19. One of them is a segment of It's A Man's World, the program NBC is cancelling as of Jan. 28.

The reasons given producer Peter Tewksbury for the cancellation was that the audience was too small, the sponsors were uneasy, and the network's affiliated stations were unhappy with the program. Apparently, according to NBC logic, no one likes the program except the executives, who thought it worthy of international competition.

BUT PETER Tewksbury has reason to question NBC's judgment, if not its candor, in scheduling the series to oblivion. Viewers have written over 70,000 letters protesting the program's cancellation. One sponsor, Carnation, is reported to have received over 20,000 letters.

Tewksbury also has letters from five of the program's sponsors saying they would have continued supporting It's A Man's World had NBC not dropped it. And even if some sponsors were unhappy, couldn't the NBC sales staff have found other sponsors?

If not, perhaps they need some new sales peoples, including Jan Norris who plays Irene in the series. She contacted sponsors personally and reports two commitments from national advertisers, Heinz and Pepsi Cola, to buy part of It's A Man's World.

Peter Tewksbury and his cast are conducting a vigorous campaign to save their program. But they are fighting discouraging odds, because few win contests with networks.

THE CANCELLATION of It's A Man's World was announced on Nov. 26 after being on the air less than two months. No program lacking name stars or guest stars can expect to accumulate an audience of 30 million people in that short time.

If nothing else, the series deserves a better chance than NBC gave it. With evidence of a loyal audience and sponsor interest Tewksbury plans to approach the other networks immediately after the program's final airing on Jan. 28.

Both CBS and ABC have schedules in a state of flux now, and should be interested in giving the series a fairer chance. They don't have much to lose, and they might find

HC Offers Evening Geology Courses

For the first time both physical and cultural geology (Geology 1 and Geology 2) will be offered to evening students at Harbor College in the spring semester, it was announced by Mortgage Wadey, science division chairman.

Eugene Gottsdanker, earth science instructor, will present Geology 1 on Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Laboratory classes will be Thursday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Gottsdanker has been in the teaching field for many years. He received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degree at the University of California at Los Angeles. Travels and experience with a Mexican oil company have provided him with a varied background.

TEACHING GEOLOGY 2 Monday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. will be Martin Reiter. Laboratory classes involving a detailed study of fossils will be offered at 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, although laboratory work is not a requirement for credit in the three-unit lecture class.

Before joining the faculty at Harbor College, Reiter was associated with Shell Oil Co. as a geologist and paleontologist. He holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Wisconsin and a master of arts degree from the University of Southern California.

"Although a background of physical geology is helpful, it is not a requirement to enroll in this class," advises Reiter. Historical geology provides an opportunity to learn about fossils and remains of prehistoric life from trilobites and dinosaurs to man.

DEADLINE TO file an application for a permit to register is Jan. 25.

Registration for evening classes will be held at Harbor College from 6 to 8 p.m., Jan. 29, 30, 31, and Feb. 4 and 5.

Additional registration and class information can be obtained from the admissions office at Harbor College.

Has Paper Drive

Cub Pack 310-C has launched a paper drive.

Contributors should contact the following numbers for pick-up: DA 9-4416, DA 4-1602, days; DA 9-3493, evenings.

Ray Gauer to Discuss 'Pornographic Plot'

Ray P. Gauer will speak on "The Pornographic Conspiracy," at the South Bay Friday Forum, Jan. 18, 7:45 p.m., at the Miralste Elementary School cafeteria.

The evening's program, which is for adults only, will include a film titled, "Perversion for Profit," a documentary showing the newsstand obscenity problem. George Putnam narrates the film.

Gauer is the national executive secretary of citizens for decent literature and has appeared on radio and television on this subject and before the Los Angeles City Council. He is associated with McCullough Corp. in Los Angeles and lives in Hollywood with his wife and six children.

A reception will be held at the Hacienda Hotel following the meeting. There will be no charge for admission and the meeting is open to the public.
