... Ann Landers

Army duty over with when he was 18.
Lawrence is 25 years old now and we've been married only eight months. He was called into the Army seven weeks ago. I'm four months pregnant and will have to quit my job soon. Lawrence is stationed in a miserable place which has no facilities for wives. He had to leave a wonderful job to go play soldier during peace time.
His boss said his job will be waiting when he comes home, but it's a competitive business and his accounts won't be waiting.
My advice to young fellows is to go and get your military service over with. The younger you are the better.
—EXPERIENCED

Dear Ann Landers: I have reason to believe that our 16-year-old daughter did something which involves lying, cheating and possibly some stealing.
She denies it flatly. Unfortunately there is no way I can prove she is lying except to go directly to the third party and bring the matter into the open. This would be embarrassing to me and humiliating to my daughter.
There is once chance in a million that she is telling the truth which is why I'm reluctant to do anything. But it is wise to let her get away with it if she is guilty?
Please tell me what to do.
—PRESS READER

Dear Press Reader: If there is a shred of hope that your daughter is telling the truth say nothing. The damage done by accusing her falsely would be irreparable. I hope you will drop the matter and treat her as if you believed in her 100 per cent.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What to Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.
Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
